PROTEST VOTE FOR MERGER

Five Democrats, Who Stood in Senate Against Party Pledges, Widely Criticised; Brown of Medford Cries "Gag Law."

From all over the State, early today, there began to pour indignant protests at the action of five Democrats in voting yesterday in the Massachusetts Senate in favor of the merger of the Boston & Maine and New Haven roads.

"Anti-merger" planks have had a prominent place in several Democratic State platforms ever since 1907.

The Democratic Senators who voted yesterday in favor of the merger are:

SENATOR EDWARD J. GRAINGER, M. D., of Winthrop, representing Chelsea, Revere, Winthrop, and Ward 1 of Boston.

SENATOR FRANCIS J. HORGAN of Boston, representing Wards 23 and 24.

SENATOR JOHN B. HUNT of Worcester, representing Wards 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10 of that city.

SENATOR JOHN H. MACK of North Adams, representing the Berkshire district, which includes Adams, North Adams, Williamstown and Pittsfield.

SENATOR JAMES F. POWERS

Lightning Hit Phone; Sent C. Q. D. From Pole

Berkshire Operator Tapped Wire After Storm Had Put His Switchboard Out of Commission.

NORTH ADAMS, May 22.—"Bill" Kane is hello girl, toll operator, information, chief operator and super in the 'phone exchange over in the town of Savoy.

So when early today, lightning struck Kane's house and threw his switchboard out of commission "Bill" thought it was time to get busy as a lineman.

Climbing to a nearby telegraph pole, Kane attached receiver and transmitter to an uninjured telephone wire. His "C. Q. D." call was heard by the North Adams telephone office.

"Send help at once," said Kane. "Also send out bricklayers and mortar to fix up my home, for the lightning has knocked down the chimney, torn off the plastering and broken the dishes in the pantry."

Great damage was done throughout the western part of the State. An electric engine coming out of the east portal of the Hoosac tunnel was struck by lightning and the engineer shocked. Up at Pownal, Vt., just across the State line, every house in the village had windows shattered. Trolley wires were thrown down all over the Berkshire region and the spring crops suffered.

PASS CITY FINANCE BILL TO 3D READING

The State Senate today advanced to a third reading the resolution providing for an investigation by a legislative recess committee of the financial condition of cities and towns, and the methods used in borrowing money. An amendment, offered by Senator Coolidge of Northampton, that the committee shall consist of three members of the Senate and six members of the House, instead of two Senators and five Representatives, as originally recommended by the Ways and Means Committee, was adopted.

What the Five Democrats Say About Vote on Merger

The sensation of the legislative year is the vote of five Democratic Senators for the Boston & Maine-New Haven merger.

The business interests of the State, the Boston Chamber of Commerce, the Public Franchise League, the Fruit and Produce Exchange, all have voted against handing the Boston & Maine over to the New Haven without a check.

The Democratic party in the Commonwealth has several times gone on record in State convention against this merger.

The AMERICAN has asked each of the five Democratic Senators why he voted against his party yesterday and in favor of the merger. These are the answers:

SENATOR JOHN B. HUNT of Worcester—I voted for Worcester.

SENATOR FRANCIS J. HORGAN of Dorchester—The whole amount of it is that my district wants electrification. My own attitude is that the railroad situation must be solved without further delay.

SENATOR JOHN H. MACK of North Adams—The principal thing I have in mind here is the desire of western Massachusetts to get through a trolley merger bill. Platforms don't bind me. I am here to serve my own district.

Mr. Mack is an attorney, forty-four years old. In 1899 he was the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor.

SENATOR EDWARD J. GRAINGER, M. D., of Winthrop—I didn't know a great deal about this measure, to tell the truth, but I have always had great faith in the unanimous report of a legislative committee. Unless there was strong evidence against them, I should always be with the committee reporting a bill. The committee has had an opportunity to go into the matter at great length. I have not had that opportunity.

SENATOR JAMES F. POWERS of South Boston—I am a member of the Committee on Railroads. I voted today as a member of that committee, which had reported this bill unanimously. The fact is, I came up here this year with one great idea in mind, to get the Grand Trunk Railway for the port of Boston.

In order to get the Grank Trunk Bill I was compelled to vote with my committee on other matters to me not quite as important. This was one of them.

But I feel that I have now done my duty by my committee. I have no assurance that, should this bill be enacted, the Grand Trunk Bill may not be killed at the last minute.

I shall do nothing to further this legislation until I have seen the Grand Trunk Bill on the statute books.

Mayor Milks Cow; Proves He's Farmer And Wins a Hat

The Joke is on Councilior McDonald, Who Thought He Was Betting on a Sure Thing.

Mayor Fitzgerald is a real farmer.

It was at Rainsford Island he demonstrated to Councilior Dan McDonald and some twenty others in an inspection party that he is no novice when it comes to milking cows and sich.

"Bet you can't milk the cow," said McDonald, as the party passed through the institution stables.

"Bet you I can. I used to know how and I don't think I've forgotten," replied the Mayor.

I'll bet you a hat you can't get any milk from that Jersey," said Dan pointing out a particular cow with an ugly cast to her eyes.

"You're on," said the Mayor as he seized a pail and a three-legged stool.

Seating himself beside Bossy, the Mayor set to work. In a few seconds milk was flowing into the pail.

"You win," said McDonald as the Mayor held up the pail with its warm milk. "I think you have been practising for that farm of yours."

PATRIOTISM URGED IN NEW CATECHISM

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 22.—Duty to country contained in the intermediate catechism approved by the Presbyterian General Assembly today is an innovation in catechisms. The answer to the question relating to duty to country is: "Our duty to our country is to love and pray for it, to obey its laws, to secure and sustain worthy officers and to serve the common good." The report of the committee on temperance, approved as reported, urged that membership in the church be refused to men engaged in any way in the liquor business.

REPORT IS AGAINST A PHONE INQUIRY

The House Committee on Ways and Means today reported "ought not to pass" on the Griffin resolve providing for an investigation by a special legislative committee of the telephone situation in the metropolitan district. The committee also reported against a resolve calling for an investigation into the advisability and cost of constructing a metropolitan parkway from the town of Dedham to the Stony Brook reservation in Boston. An adverse report was also made on the bill to create a Connecticut River Waterway Board.

"How Sweet of Him," Say Girls Whose Ages Mayor Barry Guards

Cambridge's Bachelor Executive More "Eligible" Than Ever Since Declaring "Woman's Age Her Business."

The girl clerks in Cambridge City Hall can't say too many nice things today about J. Edward Barry, the handsome bachelor Mayor of the University City. It is because the Mayor vetoes publishing the ages of city employes.

Miss Nellie Buckley, clerk in the city clerk's office, says:

"I think it is very nice of Mayor Barry. Naturally, we are all delighted with his veto."

Miss Helen Denehy, clerk in the city treasurer's office, adds:

"It is very nice and very kind of Mayor Barry."

The girls are not afraid to tell their ages, of course, but they appreciate the delicacy of the Mayor in vetoing any proposition to make their ages public. The Mayor is more "eligible" than ever now.

The age question came up in a City Council order for a book giving names, residences, ages, etc., of city employes, except laborers. In vetoing the order the gallant Mayor said:

> It has ever been the privilege of women, and a privilege transcending any possible justice or equity—even constitutional demands—that the knowledge of her age shall be her own private property, a much cherished personal and individual possession, which she can be compelled to share with no other human being.
>
> While personally I have met no woman employe who could possibly object to the publication of her age, yet I would avoid the possibility that some such may exist. What possible bearing has the place and the date of birth of a man or a woman on his or her efficiency or fitness for public office?

DR. GREEN RALLIES FOLLOWING BAD TURN

Dr. Samuel A. Green, still on the dangerous list at the Boston City Hospital, appears to have rallied from the bad turn he had a few days ago and today was reported as comfortable. He also passed a restful night.

JURY SWORN IN FOR CLAUDE ALLEN TRIAL

WYTHEVILLE, Va., May 22.—The jury in whose hands will rest the fate of Claude Allen, was sworn in at 11:12 a. m. today. Attorney Wysor opened for the prosecution, reviewing the Hillsville tragedy of March 14, when Judge Thornton L. Massie, whom the prisoner is charged with murdering, was killed.

JAIL FOR SUFFRAGE LEADERS

LONDON, May 22.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, militant leader of the suffrage party in England, and Mr. and Mrs. Pethick Lawrence, co-editors of Votes for Women, the chief suffrage organ, were today sentenced to serve nine months' imprisonment in the second division, following their conviction by a jury of conspiracy and maliciously inciting their followers to damage property. The sentence to the second division takes from the punishment the element of hard labor.

Mrs. Pankhurst defied the court when sentence was imposed. Clinging, a pathetic figure, to the edge of the dock, she declared her readiness to serve a term at hard labor and actually pleaded to be treated as a misdemeanant of the first class.

She and Lawrence were ordered to pay the costs of the prosecution.

The conviction and sentence of the three leaders was the result of a series of street disorders that culminated on the evening of March 1 in a general attack in which hundreds of women broke windows, demolished property, hurled bricks and fought with the police in the centre of London's most important district.

GIRL WOULD BRAVE FIRE TO SAVE DOG

Thirteen-year-old Rita Burns tried to get back into a burning house at No. 1880 Dorchester avenue early today to rescue her pet dog, Rex. She was stopped by firemen, after making several efforts to get by them.

Finally Richard Lutz, a boy living on the floor overhead, got in and, with his knowledge of the house, got Rex out, much to the girl's joy.

The fire started on the second floor, occupied by Mrs. Mary A. Burns, her three daughters, May, Lillian and Rita, and William Lally, a lodger. On the top floor live Lewis Lutz, patrolman attached to Joy street station, his wife and four boys. Lally was awakened by smoke, roused the Burns family then the Lutz family, ran to Engine 40 nearby, ran back and burned his hands trying to put out the fire, before the firemen arrived.

The firemen carried out Mrs. Burns and Lillian, who were stupefied by smoke. The damage was estimated at $800.

PROGRESSIVES TO MEET IN VERMONT

MONTPELIER, Vt., May 22.—There will be a meeting here tonight for the organization of the Vermont Progressive Republican League, the organization which promises to take a hand in Vermont Republican politics to the confusion of the machine, if such there be. The league is composed almost wholly of Roosevelt men, and has informally indorsed Joseph A. DeBoer of this city for Governor. He says he is not a Roosevelt man, but that he wants the votes for the Governorship.

CITY WINS SUITS OVER MENU CARDS

Judge Irwin in the Superior Court today ordered verdicts for the city and five members of the old Common Council in the suits brought by the Samuel Ward Company for $575 for menu cards furnished for a dinner for the Common Council on January 27, 1910. The suit against the members of the Council is to be reported to the full bench of the Supreme Court on questions of law as to the power of the Councilmen to bind the city, and also their individual liability.

TAKING TESTIMONY IN LUMBER SUIT

CHICAGO, May 22.—Taking of testimony against the Northwestern Association of Retail Lumber Dealers, known as the Lumber Trust, is under way today in the government's civil prosecution of the concern for violation of the Sherman law. Attorneys for the government are examining various documents, most of them communications between secretaries of lumber organizations belonging to the larger concern.

FORFEITS GARLAND MILLIONS

Mrs. Mary Louise Tudor Garland, married twice to James A. Garland, Harvard graduate and scion of a wealthy family, has sacrificed the income of $10,000,000 for love.

After a married life in which the shadows and sunshine were about equally distributed, the real romance of this beautiful woman reaches a climax on Saturday when she will become the bride of Francis Cushing Green. Mr. Green has been her financial adviser and manager of her estate since the death of her husband six years ago.

Mrs. Garland is renouncing between $400,000 and $500,000 a year for the sake of becoming the wife of Mr. Green, thus paying the highest price for love ever recorded in New England.

Mrs. Garland is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Tudor of Brookline. She is tall and dark. Among her many accomplishments is that of equestrienne. She has been a conspicuous figure in the Meadowbrook set.

Wealth and Beauty United.

The beautiful Miss Tudor met the dashing "Jimmie" Garland when he was at Harvard. He gained easy access to the fashionable and exclusive clubs of Boston. It was a love match between Miss Tudor and young Garland. They were married nineteen years ago. Boston and New York people of fashion looked on and applauded. It was the wedding of wealth and beauty. The bride was twenty-three.

They lived in Boston and at their handsome home at Hamilton and so far as the world knew there was no rift in their lute of happiness.

One night Garland went home and turned his wife into the street. She went to the home of her mother in a cab. When this fact became public there was a great stir in social circles. This was six years after their marriage. They agreed to separate, Mrs. Garland taking the children.

But Garland loved his wife, and she still had affection for him. Two years of living apart was enough for them. They became reconciled and tried domesticity again in Hamilton.

But they were not happy, and two years later found them in the divorce court at Salem. Counter suits were filed. It was a bitter fight. Love letters written to Mrs. Garland were read in court.

Reunion on Yacht.

Mrs. Garland received the decree, the custody of her children and $15,000 a year. It was supposed that the Garland-Tudor romance was dead for good and all.

Then came another surprise. This was in the Fall of 1904. "Jimmie" Garland, cruising about in his yacht, put in at Hyannisport. His divorced wife and children went aboard. Then the former husband and wife went to Bristol, R. I., and were wedded again.

They lived happily until his death. When she marries on Saturday the income of the $10,000,000 goes to her three sons, James, Charles and Hamilton Garland. Later it goes to Harvard College to aid struggling students.

SAYS WIFE THREW SILVER AT HIS HEAD

Judge Pierce in the divorce court today reserved decision in the suit brought by George E. Hall, cashier of the Collateral Loan Company, against his wife, Annie Gertrude Hall. Hall testified that his wife on several occasions threw things at him and named a list of missiles, which included a silver dollar, a silver teaspoon and a book. He claimed that on one occasion he was knocked down by the force of the blow and that the silver dollar was thrown with such force that it bounded off his head and rolled across the room. Mrs. Hall claimed that he had choked her.

Dissolution Suit Halted by Attorney Choate, Who Wants Hearing Behind Closed Doors; French is Strongly Opposed to It.

The suit of the United States government against the United Shoe Machinery Company for a dissolution of the company on the ground that it is a monopoly in restraint of trade, which started today before General Charles K. Darling as special examiner at the Federal building, was halted almost before it began because of a clash as to whether the hearing was to be in private or in public.

Charles F. Choate, Jr., attorney for the shoe machinery company, at the outset began a fight to have the whole proceedings held behind closed doors.

Asa P. French, United States District Attorney, vigorously opposed the motion. Mr. French declared that the public was entitled to know what was going on in the prosecution of this important case.

The matter was carried before Judge William Putnam, who ordered the hearings stopped until the question of privacy or publicity was settled.

Judge for Secrecy.

Judge Putnam gave it as his opinion that the hearings should be behind closed doors in the future, with the general public and the press excluded, although he did not order that this should be done.

Immediately following his ruling, it was intimated that a hurried call would be made on either the United States Supreme Court, or the Circuit Court of Appeals, for a ruling on the matter at issue.

"Jurisdiction in this matter does not lie with this court," said Mr. French. "All the other big trust hearings have been open to the public. I see no reason why the United Shoe Machinery Company should be favored."

"You can't stop my jurisdiction," replied Judge Putnam. "On account of the attitude of the United States District Attorney, I hereby order all examinations before the examiner stopped until the full court can be organized.

"I am against these hearings being public. There already has been too much about this suit in the newspapers, which prevents the defendants from securing a fair trial."

WEIL IS ON TRIAL AGAIN FOR FRAUD

Victor M. Weil, charged with using the mails in a scheme to defraud by misrepresentation of stocks, was put on trial again today before Judge Putnam in the United States District Court. The drawing of jurors was completed by noon. At the previous trial, which began in March, a mistrial was declared at the end of three weeks. Joseph Kelly, a juror, told Judge Dodge he had been approached with a bribe to throw his vote and his influence in the jury to acquit Weil.

SENATE PASSES MILK MEASURE

The Senate without division passed to be engrossed the Ellis milk bill today. The measure came before the Senate after being rejected in the House in the form of an amendment to a milk bill introduced by Senator George H. Tinkham of Boston. The bill will reach the House Friday, where a hot campaign will be waged by both sides. The vote probably will not be taken until next week.

The Ellis bill aims to obtain a pure milk supply for the State. Governor Foss last year vetoed the bill in the same form saying it imposed too great a burden on the farmers.

PROTEST OVER MERGER VOTES

of South Boston, representing Wards 13, 14, 15 and 16.

There was one Boston Senator—a Republican, Thomas H. Vinson of Wards 20 and 21—who sat silent and did not vote at all.

The debate and vote were the most exciting since that night—several years ago, now—when a President of the Senate had everybody locked in in order that a vote might be forced on one of the measures affecting women and children in the cotton mills. That President is now a judge or something, having been duly taken care of because of his rare knowledge and fitness; the bill in question is a law of Massachusetts; one of the locked-in Senators has since been a candidate for Governor and may be yet again.

The present Senate has had very little publicity this year. On the whole its record has not been bad.

There were three propositons on the program.

The first was the recommendation of the Railroad Committee that the Boston & Maine be leased to the New Haven (the Holding Company being dissolved) in return for electrification in Greater Boston and a tunnel from the North Station to the South Station.

The second was that of Senator George Holden Tinkham of Boston, Republican, that the merger question and Governor Foss' suggestion of a public utilities commission be referred to a special commission of five, to report to the Legislature of 1913.

And the third was the motion of Senator Francis J. Horgan of Boston that the Governor Foss public utilities bill be substituted for everything else.

Here are the votes which did the business:

Protests Gag Law.

The battle began with a proposition to limit debate on the most important subject of the legislative year to a single hour.

Senator Stearns of Cambridge made the one-hour motion. Democrats like Hatton, Joyce, Lomasney and Timilty helped him to shove it through. The vote was close, 19 to 18.

Senator Lomasney moved next that speakers for and against the Tinkham amendment be limited to ten minutes apiece.

Senator Brown of Medford, denouncing this suggestion as an attempt to apply the "gag" rule, was in the middle of a speech against it when President Greenwood ruled the ten-minute proposition out of order.

"I rise," said Brown, "to protest against this application of the gag law in the Senate of Massachusetts. And I rise in the name of the people of the Commonwealth.

"We are about to consider one of the biggest questions that has ever confronted Massachusetts, the merger, through lease, of two great railroad corporations. If the people of the Commonwealth could know and understand that the momentous debate on this proposition were to be limited to a specified short time, and following this curtailment that speeches were to be limited to ten minutes, I am sure we should find not only the yellow journals of the Commonwealth on the backs of this Senate, but every individual voter as well.

"Senators say they want to get away, that they want to go home. I want to go home.

"But we are elected to perform certain functions for the people. We are not here for our own amusement, and I say to those who believe that we should curtail the business of the people in order to be about our own that we will have no business to go before the people next Fall and ask them to send us back here."

Tinkham Takes Floor.

Senator George Holden Tinkham of Boston took the floor to urge the adoption of the Tinkham resolution.

The Tinkham resolve provided that the subject of merger, lease, electrification and tunnel be referred to a special commission of five members, viz.: The chairman of the Board of Railroad Commissioners (Macleod), the Chairman of the Directors of the Port of Boston (Bancroft), a person to be nominated by the Boston Chamber of Commerce (the name of D. O. Ives, transportation expert, was mentioned by those hostile to the proposition) and two other persons to be picked by the Governor.

"This proposition," Senator Tinkham said, "is offered in a thoroughly friendly spirit. I say it, and I mean it. If some say that I have given the commission too much power in this bill, or if some object to the method of selecting the commission, amend it as it seems best.

"But that some commission should look into this matter for us seems to me to be beyond denial.

"In large part my resolution represents the wishes of the Transportation Committee of the Chamber of Commerce."

SENATOR PEARSON (of the Railroad Committee)—Who are the members of the Transportation Committee of the Chamber of Commerce?

SENATOR TINKHAM—My dealings have been with Mr. Ives, the transportation expert for the Chamber.

SENATOR PEARSON—I should like to know whether Mr. Ives represented to you that he represented the Chamber in this matter; whether this proposition is merely Mr. Ives himself, getting up something and swinging it through here?

SENATOR TINKHAM—My understanding was that the Chamber of Commerce, through its board of directors, had voted unanimously, or nearly unanimously, that all legislation of this sort should be postponed until next year. My understanding was that this was not only the desire of the Transportation Committee, but it represented a vote of the board of directors.

Demands Investigation

"Now it seems to me, Mr. President, that the position of the Governor towards the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad is 'you can have anything you want as long as you give me mine,' meaning thereby, the distribution of the jobs on his proposed Utilities Commission.

"Under the circumstances, what is the sane thing for us to do?

"The sane things is to have an investigation.

"The sane thing is to have an investigation by experts and have them come forward next January with careful and well-drawn plans.

"It is well known of all men that:

"The railroad wants a dissolution of the Boston Holding Company and a lease of the Boston & Maine to the New Haven.

"The public, in the Metropolitan District, wants electrification in this district and a tunnel from the North to the South Station.

"Governor Foss wants a Public Utilities Board.

"What does the Governor do?

"Does he say to you that he is going to have the subject carefully examined?

"No. He says to the railroads: 'You shall have leave to do anything you want so long as you give me a Public Utilities Board and the jobs on it.'"

Reviews Railroad Situation.

Senator Tinkham reviewed the history of merger legislation, going back to the special message sent to the Legislature by Governor Guild, in 1907, calling attention to the fact that the New Haven Railroad has secretly obtained a large stock interest in the Boston & Maine contrary to the laws of Massachusetts.

He reminded the Senate how, in that year (1907) an act was passed prohibiting the New Haven from voting its Boston & Maine stock for one year; and how Governor Guild appointed a Commission of Commerce and Industry to look into the general situation.

Mr. Tinkham read from the report of the Commerce and Industry Commission to show that at that time the New Haven did not desire consolidation. Three members of the Commission favored "some sort of merger." Two were opposed to it.

And even at that time, five years ago, the New Haven was promising to electrify its lines in Greater Boston and to set about the building of a tunnel from the North Station to the South Station.

"Now," said Tinkham, "I do not say that I am against this proposition. I don't know. I have introduced, here, an order of inquiry, and again I insist that it is not an order of enmity. I want an investigation to the end that we may know the facts as they really are. The attitude of the Senate ought to be that 'we don't know, but we want to know and we are willing to learn.'"

Schoonmaker Heard.

Senator John H. Schoonmaker of Ware, Senate Chairman of the Committee on Railroads, made the opening fight against the Tinkham resolution.

"What have we here?" asked Schoonmaker, "a commission of five!

"Who are they?

"Well, one of them is to be 'nominated by the Chamber of Commerce,' and it goes without saying who that man will be. He will probably be their 'transportation expert,' and I say to you, Mr. President, that if there was any witness utterly discredited before the Railroad Committee this year this was the man.

"And who are the others, who shall teach us out of the profundity of their knowledge?

"One is to be the Chairman of the Board of Railroad Commissioners. Nothing whatever do I say against that gentleman, except that, through lack of experience, through lack of knowledge of railroad conditions and railroad problems, he is not the man to investigate and lend any light to the Legislature on this subject.

"Who else?

"The Chairman of the Directors of the Port of Boston, and I ask if that gentleman is one whose depth of learning, whose expert knowledge, whose idea of technical affairs, is such that he can give expert advice on this subject?

"Who the other two Commissioners may be the Legislature knows not. It may be possible, however, that the services of the Senator from Suffolk (meaning Mr. Tinkham) are to be called upon, for I notice that 'the provisions of Section 21 of Chapter 3 of the Revised Laws shall not apply in the selection of these experts. If the Governor sees fit, then, he may appoint the Senator from Suffolk.

"It seems to me, that this proposed Commission will not come to us laden with knowledge."

Denounces Merger Plan.

Senator Brown of Medford, Republican, denounced the merger plan.

"This bill," said Brown, "is the product of the minds of attorneys for the railroads, presented here as by the Committee on Railroads."

Schoonmaker did not contradict him.

And Brown went on:

"The most peculiar thing about all this, to me, is that we have twice been called on by a Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts—once by a Republican Governor and now by a Democratic Governor—to act on railroad legislation of this character just at the moment when the United States Government is preparing to take a hand in railroad affairs in New England.

"Four years ago the United States Government was instituting a suit against the New Haven railroad for having purchased a parallel and competing line in violation of the Sherman Act.

"And what happenel then?

"A Republican Governor came to their succor!

"Today we find the Interstate Commerce Commission inquiring about rates and fares and discriminations on the New Haven, the Boston & Maine and the Maine Central, and again—this time a Democratic Governor—The Governor of the Commonwealth comes forward and says 'let us once more succor this company!'

"Life Blood of State.

"And I want again to call your attention to the fact that this bill of the Railroad Committee has been prepared for us by the cool and adroit attorneys for the railroads interested; and, having done so, I wish further to call your attention to the fact that, under the provisions of this act, Mr. Mellen, as president of the Boston & Maine, can deal with Mr. Mellen as president of the New Haven and, 'for and in consideration of $1', can dispose of the Boston & Maine Railroad for a term of ninety-nine years!

"I don't believe I want to say more, except to call attention to the fact that the Boston & Maine has already gone back so far, under New Haven management, that in order to avoid a twelve-day haul the shippers of Lynn are sending their goods into Boston by team.

"Mr. President, I want to warn the members of the Senate that we are dealing here with the life-blood of Massachusetts. What we are doing here today, or are about to do, affects the man who toils with his hands as much as it affects the manufacturer."

Senator Horgan here proposed that the Senate substitute the Governor's Public Utilities Commission Bill.

Senator Tinkham said that in centres other than Boston the story was going around that it would be just as well to put a sign on the the door of the Governor of Massachusetts:

"SUB. OFFICE, J. P. MORGAN & CO."

SENATOR MACK—I don't believe that story, Mr. President. The Senator from Suffolk (Mr. Tinkham) doesn't believe it. If he does believe it, why has he left with the Governor the appointment of two of these special commissioners to act with two other appointees of our Governor?

They voted.

They killed the Tinkham resolution, 9 to 28.

They killed the Public Utilities suggestion, 12 to 24.

And they ordered the MERGER proposition to its FINAL READING, 20 to 18, with the help of FIVE DEMOCRATS.

BARGAIN AND SALE OF PUBLIC RIGHTS.

The following statement on the New Haven merger bill, submitted to every member of the House and Senate today, was prepared and signed by Edmund D. Codman, vice-president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange, for years president of the Fitchburg Railroad, trustee of the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital fund and of the Parkman fund, director of the Boston Land Company, and the Boston Wharf Company, and trustee of the Franklin Savings Bank, the Hanover Street Trust, the Mutual National Bank, the Summer Street Trust, and numerous other financial institutions:

1.—WESTERN TROLLEY MERGER.

A railroad raid masquerading as a trolley extension.

Abandoning its effort to secure dividends on watered stock the New Haven now seeks to get away with what is left of this scheme. In possession of our railroads and our steamships it wants our street cars. Having pocketed Connecticut it would now pocket Massachusetts.

Shall we hand over our street railways? If so, surely it should be in the daylight, not under cover of a bill which the Railroad Commissioners say they do not understand.

2.—UNINCORPORATED HOLDING COMPANIES.

Why this hot haste of the New Haven to escape the inquiry into the truth concerning these companies under the resolution which is based upon the report of Commissioner Trefry and which has already passed the House and the Senate.

Will the Legislature let out the New England Investment and Security Company, with its crooked history and then solemnly proceed to ascertain the facts and determine what ought to be done with such companies?

3.—WASHBURN BILL.

This bill gives added power to supervision over monopoly.

But the New Haven sees danger in public control and asks the Legislature to take the meat out of this bill and hand the public the shell. Instead of real supervision it suggests appeals, delays and paralysis. Again its fatal facility for using the hand of Esau and the voice of Jacob.

4.—BOSTON & MAINE.

More barter and trade of public rights.

Both of these bills surrender the one vital provision in the act creating the Boston Holding Company. The only excuse for the merger under that act was the right given to the State to take over the Boston & Maine stock when public interests demand, to discharge an incompetent management, IN A WORD TO KEEP OUR NEW ENGLAND SYSTEM IN NEW ENGLAND AND FOR NEW ENGLAND.

What does the New Haven propose? That the hand of the State be removed, monopoly be made absolute, the company free to transfer the control of our New England system to interests that are tied to New York rather than to Boston? For this it offers its glittering promises regardless of cost. Has it forgotten its plea of economy, its policy of cutting down service in order to keep up dividends?

These bills pretend to supervise issues of capital stock. The supervision they provide is a sham, a surrender of rights already held.

Why subject issues of capital stock to the laws of Massachusetts when the proceeds are to be expended in this State and give up all the control over issues where stock watering is a real temptation?

Suppose a steamship line between Boston and New York is to be secured. Any price may be capitalized, for the State has no control. Where watered stock can be used to kill competition the State is helpless to protect public interests.

Edmund D. Codman.

5.—PUBLIC NEEDS.

Street railway facilities in Western Towns can be secured under some plan that has been studied and is understood by experts who serve the public as well as by those who serve the railroad.

ELECTRIFICATION OF THE METROPOLITAN DISTRICT—

A first step is the legislative demand, a beginning will give life to every other improvement about Boston.

THE GRAND TRUNK is needed to bring traffic to Boston, but without surrender of public policies.

A PUBLIC UTILITIES BOARD if needed can stand upon its own footing. It ought not to be purchased.

OUR NEW ENGLAND RAILROAD needs an administration that attends to transportation business, not railroad politics, that knows today what it will do tomorrow, that deals openly and fulfils its promises, that can view a competitor without being made dizzy, that can not only secure a merger but make good in handling it.

HISTORY—what about the record of the New Haven? Read the indictment by the Chamber of Commerce before the Joint Board of Port Directors and Railroad Commissioners WHO ARE NOW INVESTIGATING THE SITUATION BY DIRECTION OF THIS LEGISLATURE.

Transportation interests on which our future depends are at stake —the Legislature should protect them.

The Chamber of Commerce opposes proposed New Haven legislation—the Public Franchise League opposes it—the shipping and traveling public opposes it—public opinion generally opposes it.

OFFICIAL STATE PRIMARY VOTE

The committee of the Executive Council which has made an official tabulation of the votes cast for President and Vice-President in the preferential primary reported today.

The report shows President Taft led Roosevelt on the preferential vote by 3,623 votes. Champ Clark won over Woodrow Wilson by 19,573 votes, beating the New Jersey executive by more than two to one. Senator La Follette, although running a bad third for President, got the biggest number of Republican votes for Vice-President, 2,043. Governor Foss received 2,971 Democratic votes for Vice-President, beating Mayor Fitzgerald by 140 votes.

Champ Clark, according to the revised tabulation, carried every Congressional district in the State with the exception of the First, which he lost to Wilson by 92 votes. On the Republican side, President Taft carried the First, Second, Third, Sixth, Eleventh, Twelfth and Thirteenth districts on the preferential vote. Roosevelt carried all the others. Whether the President lost the district delegates in the Eighth and Tenth districts, officially will not be known until the Secretary of State announces the result of the tabulation he is making of the vote for delegates.

The Trip to California Under Special Care

"You feel like sorting out and tying together the memories of this trip and keeping them separate from all other trips." A woman recently said this after a pleasant experience on a Burlington Route Through Tourist Car Excursion party to California. She traveled alone, but met many agreeable people on the car, which was in charge of a special conductor. This good natured official was a well-informed, courteous man, who went all the way through with the party, looking after everyone's comfort and attending to all the little details of the trip. Thus a woman or child in one of these parties can travel with perfect safety and freedom from care. If you would like to know more about the Burlington's comfortable and inexpensive personally conducted excursions, please write me a postal and I'll send you maps, booklets, pictures, etc., by return mail. BURY RICHESON HERE SECRETLY

The funeral of Clarence V. T. Richeson took place this afternoon in the basement vestry of the Warren Avenue Baptist Church in the presence of about twenty people.

The body was then taken to an undertaker's to be embalmed and then to be buried. The place of interment was not announced, beyond an intimation that it was in or near Boston. The body was not to be taken South for burial in Richeson's boyhood home.

The funeral service took ten minutes. It was conducted by the Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. oJhn L. Campbell, pastor of the First Baptist church of Cambridge. Only the brother and sister of Richeson, William A. Morse, his attorney, a few friends of these and reporters were present.

The only floral tribute was a bouquet of pink and white carnations which Dr. Johnson bought and personally placed on the casket. The casket was not opened during the service or after. This was in deference to a request of Richeson.

The body of Richeson was taken from the North Grove street morgue this noon and was taken secretly to the vestry of the church. It was in a black broadcloth casket, whose silver name-plate was inscribed thus:

CLARENCE VIRGIL THOMPSON RICHESON
Died May 21, 1912.

The casket was placed on a rest in front of the little platform in the vestry. The dim light which came in through the low windows barely disclosed the casket the rows of about 100 chairs, the stack of hymn books and other simple furnishings of a Baptist vestry.

Exciting Match in Golf Championship

WOMEN GOLFERS IN BIG CHAMPIONSHIP CONTEST AT WOLLASTON CLUB

KATHERINE EDGETTE ◇ CONSTANCE RIGHTER ◇ FRANCES MACDONALD

MRS F G DAVIS

All the matches in the second round of the championship of the Boston Women's Golf association were played off today at theat the Wollaston Golf Club; with Miss Harriet S. Curtis of the Country Club and Miss K. F. Duncan of Brae Burn, furnishing the finest contest of the day. Their match was carried to the home green where Miss Curtis won 1 up.

The lead alternated on the outward journey and Miss Duncan, by winning the 8th and halving the 9th, led at the turn by 1 up. Coming home Miss Duncan increased this lead at the 10th hole to 2 up, but lost the following three holes by stymies and faulty putting. Miss Duncan succeeded in winning back a lead of 1 up but to no avail for Miss Curtis was equal to the winning the 16th and squaring the match. The 17th hole was halved in 6's and then Miss Curtis laying her second shot to the 18th, on the green, ran down a 4 to Miss Duncan's 5 and won the match 1 up. Their cards follow:

Miss Harriet S. Curtis—

Fine Golf by Mrs. Wheeler.

Mrs. E. C. Wheeler, Jr., of Wollaston, former winner of this championship played an exceptionally fine round of 86, going out in 48 and coming home in ten less. Mrs. Wheeler defeated Miss L. A. Wells of the Country Club by the large margin of 5 up and 4 to play, and little wonder, for an 86 is an enviable score for many a player of the stronger sex.

Mrs. G. W. Roope of Brae-Burn put Miss G. Rogers of Norfolk, out of the running by 4 up and 3 to play and turned in a gross of 92, which was second from the lowest score turned in thus far in the tourney. These two cards follows:

Mrs. Wheeler's card—

BISHOPS' DAY AT HOLY CROSS

WORCESTER, May 22.—Holy Cross College was the scene of great festivities today in honor of "Bishop's Day," devoted to a reception in honor of those graduates of Holy Cross who have been raised to the Episcopal purple.

The exercises were opened with solemn pontifical high mass celebrated at 10 o'clock by Right Rev. Dr. Beaven, class of '70, bishop of Springfield. He was assisted by Rev. William H. Fitzpatrick, '82, of Dorchester, the Rev. P. B. Phelan, '69 of Holyoke, the Rev. David F. McGrath, '73 of Milford.

Other prelates and clergy present were Rt. Rev. Dr. Rice, '91, Bishop of Burlington, Vt.; Rev. Richard Neagle, '73, of Malden; Rt. Rev. Matthew Harkins, '64, Bishop of Providence; Rev. Michael J. Hogan, '64, of Scranton, Pa.; Rt. Rev. Dr. Walsh, Bishop of Portland, and hundreds of other clergy from all parts of New England.

GAME RAISING PROMISES FARMER LARGE PROFITS

Through the efforts of the Audubon Society of Massachusetts and other Audubon societies and organizations, a law has been passed that will prohibit the sale of all game birds in this State after January 1, next. As a result of this law certain kinds of game will be raised on farms and eventually a new industry will be created. In a circular sent out by the ornithologist department of the State Board of Agriculture it is pointed out that those who can raise game birds in this State will soon find it a remunerative industry.

"Wood ducks and some species of pheasants," the circular says, "are selling for $25 to $35 per pair for propagating purposes. Pheasants' eggs sell at from $3 to $6 per dozen. The demand for Mallards is increasing. The man who can solve the problem of producing quail or grouse in large numbers has a fortune within his grasp. There is a good demand for guinea hens, Belgian hares and deer. The task is not easy, but success will be well rewarded, and the time will come when private enterprise will produce more game in this country than nature ever could supply."

DARROW IS ANGRY OVER REPORT HE WOULD CONFESS

LOS ANGELES, May 22.—Attorney Clarence S. Darrow of Chicago, accused of bribing a juror in the trial of James B. McNamara, was indignant today when told of a report printed in Eastern newspapers that he would plead guilty.

"The story is untrue, and whoever sent it out is crazy," said Mr. Darrow. "Nobody has authority to make the statement. No such thing has even been dreamed of. There is absolutely nothing to it. The trial will proceed to the end."

With a panel of twelve new talesmen work of selecting the last juror went on today.

"OHIO SETTLES IT" ROOSEVELT INSISTS

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., May 22.—"The victory in Ohio settles the contest," declared Theodore Roosevelt today. "I believe we could have won without Ohio, but our opponents needed a substantially solid vote in order to give them a chance to make a contest at the Chicago convention.

The colonel was jubilant over the outcome in the latest State to register its belief that he should be nominated to succeed President Taft. He took the opportunity to poke a little fun at President's Taft's declaration that he would not trust the impulsive judgment of the people by saying:

"I am very much pleased with 'impulsive judgment' of Ohio.

"I can only repeat," he continued, "what I have already said: That I infinitely prefer the deliberate judgment of the people to their impulsive judgment, and in Ohio we got their deliberate judgment.

"And as I have also said, if I had to make the choice I would choose the impulsive judgment of the people rather than the deliberate judgment of the bosses."

Then discussing the possibility of the Taft forces starting a contest to oust his delegates at Chicago, he said:

"'The victory in Ohio means that it will be hopeless for them to try to do that at Chicago by unseating our delegates who represent the popular will in Washington, Indiana, Kentucky and elsewhere; nor will it be possible for them to try to win by seating delegates from Southeren States who represent nothing whatever but fraud.

"I am profoundly appreciative of what the people of Ohio have done. It represents a victory not only for the plain people of the Republican party, but for every good citizen in the United States, for in this contest we have stood for the fundamental rights of good citizenship and every honest and decent citizen, no matter what his politics, is profoundly concerned in our victory, for we are fighting his battles."

Walter Brown, chairman of the Ohio State Central Committee, who led the Roosevelt forces to victory in Taft's home State, was a guest of the colonel today. He was as jubilant as the ex-President, and asserted Roosevelt would have received a much heavier vote if the names of both the candidates had been printed on the Ohio ballot. Colonel Roosevelt started out on a long ride on horseback after making his comments on the Ohio primaries. He will enter New Jersey tomorrow, and is confident that he will win another victory there.

HARMON GETS A BIG MAJORITY; ROOSEVELT SWEEPS THE DISTRICTS

COLUMBUS, O., May 22.—Theodore Roosevelt has defeated President Taft by 25,000 votes and has captured thirty-one of the forty-two district delegates.

Governor Harmon has defeated Woodrow Wilson by a majority of at least 40,000.

These facts stood out prominently today as the returns from the Republican and Democratic primaries came in. The returns were complete enough to show that Ohio, "the mother of presidents," has rejected her native son, William Howard Taft, and had to support his predecessor for the Republican nomination.

The Taft people were still fighting today, and State Manager Laylin claims the six delegates-at-large to be chosen by the State convention will be for the President. In reply the Roosevelt manager said: "The tail will go with the hide." He apparently was confident the State convention would abide by the voters' wishes.

On the Democratic side Governor Harmon probably will have the solid vote of the Ohio delegation at Baltimore. Though several Wilson delegates were elected, the unit rule will be followed as a result of an agreement made by the Harmon and Wilson followers at a State Committee meeting.

Harmon managed to carry Cincinnati by a small majority. Wilson captured Cleveland and Toledo. When the city returns, the first to be reported, came in, the Wilson people were jubilant, but when the rural districts were heard from the majority of Harmon was clear.

The Taft leaders conceded one of the Seventh District delegates to Roosevelt. This increased the Roosevelt delegates to thirty-one.

Returns at 11 o'clock indicated Harmon delegates were elected in the First, Second, Fifth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Eighteenth districts, giving him twenty delegates exclusive of the six delegates-at-large.

Wilson appeared to be the winner in the Third, Fourth, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Seventeenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth and Twenty-first, giving him a total of eighteen delegates.

Both sides were claiming the Sixth and Seventh, with returns slightly favoring Harmon.

The ballots showed that William Jennings Bryan has numerous supporters in Ohio, his name being written by admiring voters in all parts of the State.

The leaders of both Taft and Roosevelt factions admit that the contest for Ohio was "very expensive." The Taft people estimate that the Roosevelt managers "used $3 for every $1 paid out by the President's supporters," and the Taft people do not deny that they were compelled to spend "more than $100,000." The source of some of the $500,000 which the Roosevelt forces dumped into Ohio is credited to Daniel R. Hanna, George W. Perkins, Mr. Garford, a wealthy automobile maker, and some financiers in Cleveland.

PRESIDENT TAFT TO START ON NEW JERSEY CAMPAIGN TOMORROW

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Undeterred by Ohio's apparent repudiation of his policies, President Taft upon his return to Washington at 8:55 today commenced the preparation for his New Jersey campaign, which will begin tomorrow and continue until Tuesday.

The President is devoting the day to a consideration of the merits of the candidates for the three vacancies in the upper ranks of the army. The presidential party will leave Washington at 7:30 tomorrow morning, arriving in New Jersey about noon.

LEVANZIN DESCRIBES "TORTURE" DURING HIS 31-DAY FAST

Scientific Man Asserts He "Suffered Frightfully" in Calorimeter.

Professor Agostino Levanzin, who made the much discussed thirty-three-day fast at the Carnegie Laboratory in Roxbury, gives in the AMERICAN today the first instalment of a remarkable story covering his entire experience.

Professor Levanzin is to set forth all the details and declares his story "will astonish the scientific fraternity of America." He is no ordinary subject. He is a scientific man, cultured and refined. He speaks many languages and reads and writes English perfectly, although he is a native of Malta.

The treatment received by this disinterested and zealous scientist, who trusted himself to the care of the Carnegie Foundation without hope of gain, has aroused much interest among physicians and scientific men.

Professor Francis Gano Benedict, head of the Carnegie Laboratory, is recognized as the world's greatest authority on nutrition.

Among the points emphasized by Professor Levanzin are:

Charges laboratory with failure to promptly meet financial obligations.

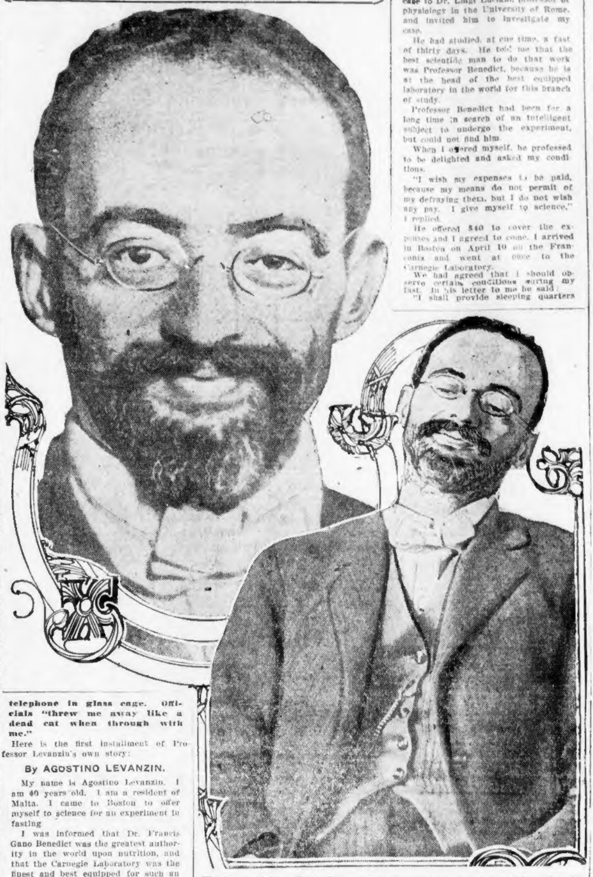
British consul's aid required to secure expense money.

Meanwhile, wife had to pawn jewels.

Stay in calorimeter was like being buried alive, save he had telephone in glass cage. Officials "threw me away like a dead cat when through with me."

Here is the first installment of Professor Levanzin's own story:

AGOSTINO LEVANZIN, AFTER AND BEFORE EATING



The lower picture shows Levanzin as he looked on leaving hospital after his long fast. The other pitcure was taken after he had one meal.

By AGOSTINO LEVANZIN.

My name is Agostino Levanzin. I am 40 years old. I am a resident of Malta. I came to Boston to offer myself to science for an experiment in fasting.

I was informed that Dr. Francis Gano Benedict was the greatest authority in the world upon nutrition, and that the Carnegie Laboratory was the finest and best equipped for such an experiment.

I trusted Dr. Benedict and believed that he would appreciate me as a fellow scientist, and that the zeal which made me sacrifice my own body in the interest of humanity would be admired by him—that we would be experimenters together. Instead, he treated me with the same contempt and indifference he would a dog that had perished under the knife. I was squeezed dry and cast aside. What became of me interested him not at all.

I am going to relate my experiences at the Carnegie Laboratory and afterwards. I am going to astonish the scientific fraternity of America by exposing the limitations and brutality of a man who bears an undeserved reputation as a great American scientific authority.

I have been studying the question of fasting for several years. I believe that fasting is going to be the cure of the future for many diseases. My attention was first called to this matter by an article by Upton Sinclair in the Contemporary Review. At that time I was overeating and under the impression that hard mental work required a great amount of nutritious food. Sinclair's article advocated the contrary idea. It struck me and I began to experiment. My first fast was for eight days, on water only. I was greatly benefited and more surprised.

I then read the best books on the subject to prepare myself for a longer one. On March 1, 1911, I started my long fast of forty days. I broke on April 10. During the fast I continued my usual occupations and I derived a great benefit from it to my health. Mrs. Levanzin at the same time started a fast that lasted thirty-three days. That, I believe, is the record fast for a woman.

Thinking that fasting should be studied scientifically ? I submitted the case to Dr. Luigi Luciani, professor of physiology in the University of Rome, and invited him to investigate my case.

He had studied, at one time, a fast of thirty days. He told me that the best scientific man to do that work was Professor Benedict, because he is at the head of the best equipped laboratory in the world for this branch of study.

Professor Benedict had been for a long time in search of an intelligent subject to undergo the experiment, but could not find him.

When I offered myself, he professed to be delighted and asked my conditions.

"I wish my expenses to be paid, because my means do not permit of my defraying them, but I do not wish any pay. I give myself to science," I replied.

He offered $40 to cover the expenses and I agreed to come. I arrived in Boston on April 10 on the Franconia and went at once to the Carnegie Laboratory.

We had agreed that I should observe certain conditions during my fast. In his letter to me he said:

"I shall provide sleeping quarters for you in the building, as of course, you must be under constant surveillance during the whole time you are fasting.

The routine will include some outdoor exercise, but most of the time will be spent in the laboratory undergoing chiefly respiratory tests, either with the small respiration apparatus, breathing through mouthpiece or nose piece, or inside one of the calorimeters, probably lying down in bed. You will probably sleep every night inside of the calorimeter.

He told me to read his book to see how the calorimeter worked. In this book the calorimeter was shown to be a chamber large enough for a bed and some furniture. I supposed that he meant I should sleep in such a chamber.

A calorimeter is an instrument to measure the heat that comes from the human body.

When I arrived at the laboratory on April 10 they told me I must go at once to the calorimeter.

They showed me the calorimeter and to my surprise it was a coffin-shaped object barely 7 feet long and 1 1-2 feet high.

"I understood the calorimeter was a chamber," I said.

"Oh, we are not using that now; this is better," he replied.

I didn't want to enter the ghastly contrivance, but it was my first night and I hated to make objections.

I lay down on a stretcher, which had a thin air mattress. They then placed upon my chest a stethoscope which was fastened with an elastic band and had a tube which passed over the shoulder and communicated with the outside. They also used a thermometer and I was compelled to keep it all night and sometimes all day as well. This was horrible.

When the instruments were ready the stretcher was pushed inside the calorimeter and I lay as though in my coffin. The cover was within three or four inches of my face. My shoulders were touching the sides. To all intents and purposes, except that I was supplied with air, I was buried alive.

"Tortured Most Frightfully."

That is not strictly true, however, for I also had a telephone which I had to hold in my hand all night. Every five minutes that I was awake I had to call to the man on watch.

Air was manufactured and furnished in an equitable manner while those on duty attended the apparatus properly. But let the machine get into incompetent hands and the fumes of sulphuric acid become so strong as to suffocate the unfortunate subject.

I was several times later tortured most frightfully because boys were left in charge of the apparatus, and, taking no care of it, endangered my life.

Of this I shall have more to say later.

During my first night my surroundings were so unpleasant that I could not sleep. The interior of the calorimeter is lined with copper tubes which carry water, and sometimes the water drips down upon one.

PROFESSOR CHARGES UNFAIR TREATMENT BY HEAD OF ROXBURY INSTITUTION.

The reason for these extraordinary things was to measure the heat given off from my body, both internally and externally, during all periods of the night.

It would seem that the fact that a man is going without food would be deprivation enough in itself without subjecting him to any but the most simple and agreeable tests. In the interest of science, however, I determined not to complain.

A most aggravating feature of the first days was the failure of Dr. Benedict to advance me forty pounds, the money he had agreed to pay me for my expenses the day I arrived at the laboratory. Our agreement was as follows, to quote from his letter of December 19, 1911:

"The total expense to us to be eighty pounds, half of this to be paid upon your arrival in Boston and the other half upon the completion of your stay in the laboratory."

I had expended my own money to live upon. The doctor never made any offer to keep this part of the agreement, and I couldn't send anything. Mrs. Levanzin and our children were obliged to go and live with her father.

I had borrowed twenty pounds to aid my journey, promising to pay upon my arrival in America. My creditor wrote me insulting letters during the whole month, and finally, to avoid proceedings, Mrs. Levanzin had to pawn her jewelry to pay the debt. This is all because Benedict did not pay me the forty pounds. It was not until I sent for the British Consul at the end of the test that I received the eighty pounds due me.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Schlitz is as pure when poured into your glass as when it left the brewery. It's the Brown Bottle. It keeps out the light. Light develops in beer a peculiar taste and a disagreeable odor.

Schlitz is properly aged before leaving the brewery.

The decision of Senator Winthrop Murray Crane not to stand for re-election to the United States Senate when his present term expires next May was taken by Republican leaders in Massachusetts today as not only indicating the defeat of President Taft at the Chicago convention, but as showing that Supreme Court Justice Charles E. Hughes, former Governor of New York, or even Crane himself, may be in line as the "dark horse" for the G. O. P. nomination.

Senator Crane's intimate friends admitted this afternoon that it was not beyond the bounds of possibility that the Senator himself may be a receptive candidate.

It was declared, however, that it was more likely that Crane will cast his support to Justice Hughes at the Chicago convention. Crane has long been the justice's friend, and four years ago led the fight in Massachusetts in favor of the former New York chief executive.

Taft Campaign "Blown Up."

Republican politicians today declared that Crane's declining to run again for the United States Senate was a cleverly planned move. They said it would leave him free to reply to any attacks that may be made within the next few months by the Republican Progressives.

One Republican leader declared the Senator's refusal to run again was most significant, in that it was practically an acknowledgment that Taft's campaign for the renomination has "blown up."

Other reasons contributed toward Senator Crane's decision, according to the talk among the Republicans today. One reason was that by his withdrawal Crane can avoid a bitter warfare for the control of next year's Legislature. Another reason is that he is unwilling to risk the chance of a direct election.

Crane's withdrawal from the senatorial race was the one topic of discussion among the Republicans this afternoon. It was recalled that the announcement of his determination to get out of the fight came on the windup of the battle in Ohio, in which Taft was swamped and Roosevelt won by a large margin.

Crane's defeat for delegate-at-large, because he stood for Taft in the Massachusetts primaries, hurt him deeply. No one doubts he is convinced that he would not survive the coming senatorial primaries. Powerful as he is, he has always curled up under criticism. And the fusillade of it that has been directed at him since he took personal charge of the Taft campaign for re-election has realy driven him out of politics before he ever had a real personal fight.

Took Aldrich's Mantle.

Crane became a power in the Senate during his first term. At the retirement of Senator Aldrich, he, with Penrose of Pennsylvania and Smoot of Utah, took active command of the Senate.

His methods were utterly unlike those of Aldrich. He never made a speech and he never issued orders. He never bullied. Silently he flitted in and out of the chamber and committee rooms, whispering suggestions and pointing out when and how to get things done. His still small voice was always for compromise inside the party, never with the enemy.

From the beginning the progressives felt the force of his keen intellect. Always from cover, he fought them stubbornly, and often successfully. They could seldom trace the opposition he organized, but they usually suspected from whence it came. And it is due to his stratagems and schemes that the reactionary forces did not crumble with the retirement of Aldrich.

Crane was bitterly oposed to giving Massachusetts direct primaries. When the Roosevelt people started the agitation, he sent out orders to head it off. But the Colonel and Senator Dixon kept on holding that Taft was afraid of an out-and-out fight and the President finally induced Crane to yield.

Senator Crane for months has been one of the big men behind the Taft campaign. He has been in almost daily conference with the President and has been given the title "General Manager of the United States."

As chairman of the Committee on Rules Mr. Crane may be said to run the Senate. It is the controlling committee of the upper branch of Congress and holds in its power the determination of all legislation.

In addition Mr. Crane is a member of the important committees on Interstate Commerce and Postoffices and Post Roads. He is also a member of the Committee on Cuban Relations, an important committee when one considers the various ways in which Cuban affairs are intimately connected with big business.

Interstate Commerce and Postoffice and Post Roads are also very important committees from Mr. Crane's standpoint. It is pretty generally believed that Mr. Crane is one of the biggest owners of Bell Telephone stock and his family is largely interested in railroads through their extensive investments.

The Interstate Commerce Committee has to do with railroads, while the Postoffices and Post Roads Committee has to do with the Postoffice appropriations. Recently Postmaster-General Hitchcock, who is credited to Massachusetts and votes in Newton, recommended government ownership of the telegraph lines. Mr. Hitchcock is going to leave the Cabinet, it is said, very shortly.

Race for Crane's Seat.

The most interesting thing in Bay State politics today is the race for Crane's seat. As soon as Senator Crane announced his retirement, Mayor Fitzgerald announced his candidacy.

The consensus of opinion among the Bay State Congressmen at Washington was that Congressmen Weeks, Lawrence and Gardner would make the race to succeed the Senator.

Also many of the members suggested that Ambassador Guild and Secretary Meyer might be found in the running.

Former Speaker of the House Joseph Walker, who gave way last year in favor of Senator Lodge, Congressman Butler Ames who made the fight against Lodge, Lieutenant-Governor Luce and William B. Plunkett of North Adams are included in the list of possible successors to Senator Crane.

Curtis Guild, ambassador to Russia, who has just reached this country, is not a candidate for the Republican nomination for the Vice-Presidency and will not take the stump for either Taft or Roosevelt, according to dispatches from New York.

Ambassador Guild, after a conference with President Taft and officers of the State Department, will spend two weeks in Boston and leave for Russia again early in June.

Despite the denials of the Ambassador, necessary for State reasons and required by diplomatic regulations, party leaders in Massachusetts believe that the presence of Ambassador Guild in the United States at this time is not without political significance.

Governor Foss will not take part in the fight to secure Senator Crane's place. In discussing the matter today he said:

"I shall not be a candidate to succeed Senator Crane. There is nothing else I can say in the matter."

Congressman Gardner said: "It is unfortunate for the State that Senator Crane will not longer represent it in Congress. He was a valuable Senator and could have been even more useful with another term."

Congressman Weeks said: "I am sorry Senator Crane made the decision. He should remain in the Senate, where he has commanded influence. This influence wor worth a great deal to the people of our State."

Congressman Lawrence said: "Senator Crane was the right man in the right place. We will all be sorry to see him retire. It will take a new man a long time to fill the place now occupied by Senator Crane."

Congressman Wilder said: "I am particularly sorry to hear that Senator Crane is about to leave the Senate. A few days ago I met him, and I said, jokingly, that I wished he would hurry and get out, as I wanted to succeed him. He replied, in apparently the same fashion, that he meant to do that very thing. The State will miss Senator Crane in Washington."

The retirement of Senator Crane is held to mean that all opposition will be withdrawn to a senatorial primary within the parties this Fall. Some of the Senator's friends felt that a law establishing a primary that could be used in this election only looked to much like a slap at him. They had understood it was distasteful to him to enter into a campaign such as has recently been witnessed here in the Presidential primary, and they hesitated to approve of such legislation, even though it seemed politically expedient to do so.

Promptly on learning that Senator Crane would not be a candidate for further Senatorial honors, Mayor John F. Fitzgerald threw his hat in the ring as a Democratic candidate for the United States Senate. The Mayor's determination will be followed by the candidacies of other Democrats.

"I announce my candidacy for the position to succeed Senator Crane," Mayor Fitzgerald stated today.

"The withdrawal of Senator Crane naturally foreshadows the passage of the senatorial primary preference bill by the Massachusetts Legislature. I expect the preference bill to pass and will be a candidate and go into every part of the State in my campaign."

Senator Crane was appointed to the United States Senate on October 12, 1904, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Hoar, and took his seat in December of the same year. He was elected by the Legislature in January, 1905, to fill out the term, and was re-elected to serve the full term of six years in 1906. In the Senate Mr. Crane has been a prominent figure, having been a member of many important committees.

WOMEN WEEP AT STORY OF TITANIC

LONDON, May 22.—Society women shuddered and wept at the Titanic inquiry today when John Pitman, third officer of the liner, described the scene of horror when the vessel sank. Pitman, who was in charge of lifeboat No. 5, told how the screams of drowning men and women rang out, growing fainter as the victims became exhausted and sank. Asked why he did not return, the witness said simply: "We were afraid of being swamped." Pitman was asked: "Did you hear Captain Smith say anything to anybody about the ship being doomed?" "When we were clearing away the boats," he replied, "Mr. Andrews, of the firm of Harlan & Wolf, told Captain Smith he would give the vessel an hour to an hour and a half."

WOMEN CHANGE ALLIANCE NAME

Unitarian women today voted to change the name of their organization, leaving out the word "National," so henceforth the name will be "The Alliance of Unitarian and other Liberal Christian Women." This action was taken after a warm debate in the South Congregational (Unitarian) Church, Exeter and Newbury streets. The Canadian delegates objected to the word "National."

Mrs. N. W. Weller of Montreal said: "No one who has lived in Canada can tell how strong the feeling is against this organization being called 'The National Alliance of Unitarian and Other Liberal Christian Women.' We want that word National taken out and something else substituted in its place."

Mrs. W. L. LeBaron wanted the word "International" substituted. Mrs. C. W. Casson called for the word "American," and said that Canadians liked that word. Mrs. Emily Fifield wanted just the word "Unitarian" used.

Finally the whole matter of suggesting a word to take the place of "National" was carried by a vote of 135 against 93, to be reported upon at the next annual meeting.

Mrs. Robert H. Davis of New York said that ten new branches had been added to the alliance in the year. Mrs. Lucia Clapp Noyes, treasurer, reported a balance of $9,754.

Mrs. Emma C. Low presided and most of the session was occupied in making amendments to the by-laws.

The Rev. Edward Cummings of Boston spoke on "The Education of the Modern Minister" before the annual meeting of the Meadville Alumni Association in Bulfinch Place Church. Rev. L. Walter Mason of Pittsburg and Rev. Frank W. Pratt of Calgary, Canada, made addresses also.

MRS. LARZ ANDERSON BACK FROM BELGIUM

NEW YORK, May 22.—Mrs. Lars Anderson of Boston, wife of the American Minister at Brussels, who arived from Bremen on the Kaiser Wilhelm II., said that everything was quiet at the Belgian capital when she left. She was travelling with friends from Kentucky.

GOVERNOR VETOES WORCESTER BILL

Governor Foss today vetoes the Worcester State Hospital appropriation bill which called for the expenditure of $111,700. The Governor said that he was opposed to enlarging any State institution when the need of the State could better be met by building an entirely new institution, perhaps in another locality. He pointed out that former legislatures have refused to allow the purchase of land called for in this bill.

FORESTERS MEET IN CONVENTION

Hundreds of delegates from all sections of the State are in the city today attending the thirty-third annual convention of the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters.

The exercises of the convention were preceded by solemn high mass at the church of St. Joseph, West End. The delegates met in Ford Hall, where they were called to order by High Chief Ranger Cornelius M. Duggan.

Mr. Duggan reviewed the growth of the order. There are 236 subordinate courts, with a membership, both men and women, of 33,683.

Finances of the Order.

Of the finances of the order, the high chief ranger said:

"Considering the large amount paid from the mortuary fund during the year 1911, namely, $362,659.55, we had a balance to our credit January 1, 1912, of $69,822.21, as compared with $65,012.98 January 1, 1911.

"Our emergency fund, January 1, 1911, amounted to $350,117.99, and increased $49,413.63 during the year, making the amount in that fund January 1, 1912, $399,531.62. Of this increase $35,778.91 was received from the members of the order, the balance being net income from investments."

Rev. Dr. James H. O'Neil, high chaplain of the order, said to the delegates:

"It is for you to see that nothing shall be done to mar the glories of the past. You are a wise conservative body, the choice of nearly 40,000 people, who place their interests in your hands.

Medical Examination.

"The interest of the orphan and the widow is at stake. Your life insurance is at stake. The stability and perpetuity of the order is at stake. You are all stockholders in a vast business proposition; yearly you are making deposits of your money to the end that your dependents may not suffer. That your mothers, fathers, sisters, brothers and children may not know want. That after the bread winner of the family has passed to God, his dependents may not fall victims to public charity. During the past thirty-three years you have expended in this way over $4,113,000 and you have directly benefited 25,000 individuals."

Dr. Francis J. Hanley, high medical examiner, in his report impressed upon all local medical examiners the need of great vigilance in their acceptance of members.

"Early deaths," he said, "are inevitable and yet nothing is more detrimental to an insurance examiner's reputation. It has always been our policy, therefore, to make a most rigorous investigation in each of these cases, to ascertain if by any possibility these deaths could be foreseen, or their likelihood even be suspected. In other words, to determine whether or not the examining physician had been derelict in his duty."

Financial Report.

The report of the trustees, Patrick F. Burke, George Wirth and Samuel J. Cochran, contained the following statistics:

Balance in hands of trustees
Jan 1, 1911	$350,117.99
From high secretary-treasurer, emergency fund	35,778.91
Net earnings on investments for 1911	13,634.72
Total	$399,531.62
Invested as follows:
Real estate	$5,000.00
First mortgage loans	159,775.00

Union Institution for Savings, on deposit	579.76
Old Colony Trust Co., on deposit	1,959.21
Total	$399,531.62

The municipal bonds owned are divided among the cities of Boston, Brockton, Cambridge, Chicopee, Fall River, Gloucester, Haverhill, Holyoke, Lawrence, Lynn, Malden, Melrose, New Bedford, Newburyport, Newton, Pittsfield, Quincy, Salem, Somerville, Springfield, Taunton, Waltham and Worcester. FOSS REBUKES LEGISLATURE

Governor Foss severely rebukes the Legislature in two special messages to the Senate and House today.

In one message, renewing a recommendation that the Legislature provide for the representation of Massachusetts at the Panama-Pacific Exposition to be held in San Francisco in 1915, the Governor takes the solons to task, saying:

"I believe the people of this Commonwealth will note with disfavor the failure of the present Legislature to provide for the representation of Massachusetts at the exposition."

In the second message, vetoing a resolve providing for an appropriation of $111,000 for additions and improvements at the Worcester State Hospital, the Governor scores the Legislature for its failure to make adequate provisions within the metropolitan area for the insane who are properly chargeable to that area. The Governor also criticises the administration of the State Hospital at Worcester, declaring that it already exceeds what competent authorities consider the normal limit of such an institution.

Here is Governor Foss' message on the Panama exposition:

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives:

In further relation to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition to be held in San Francisco during 1915, I believe the people of this Commonwealth will note with disfavor the failure of the present Legislature to provide for the representation of Massachusetts at that exposition.

Since my message to you on April 22, it has been brought to my attention that twenty-nine other States have already appointed Commissions to the exposition; and Hawaii and the Philippines have done the same. It will not be to the credit of Massachusetts if the prompt, energetic and businesslike action of these twenty-nine other States places them and their industries in a position of advantage over us in the exposition.

The proper pride of this State, and her economic and business interests, must be duly considered.

The exposition to be held at the western gateway of our country, to celebrate the opening of the Panama Canal, is an event of exceptional significance to New England. This exposition will provide for our arts and industries a more impressive and effective introduction than we have ever had before to the markets of the world.

Your early reconsideration of this weighty matter is earnestly requested.

BADLY HURT IN SOUTH END FIRE

Sing Coll, a Chinaman, was overcome by smoke and probably fatally burned, and Mrs. John Mills, a tenant of the building, was carried to the street by Patrolman Brennan, of Station 4, during a fire in the laundry at No. 98 Carver street, South End, early today.

About fifteen persons, who occupy apartments in the upper floors of the three and one-half-story brick dwelling, had an exciting time escaping in their nightrobes.

Sing Coll, who owns the laundry, was taken to the City Hospital. His name is on the dangerous list.

Patrolman Brennan discovered the fire, and, breaking down the door of the laundry, rushed in and rescued Sing Coll. He returned to the apartments on the upper floors of the house and aroused the sleeping occupants while waiting for the ambulance.

He was obliged to carry out Mrs. Mills, who was ill and unable to walk. The policeman led the other occupants out by the stairways through halls filled with smoke. Sing Coll was in a pitiful condition and suffering much pain.

The cause of the fire was not determined and the damage was about $1,000.

SOX AFTER MORE CLEVELAND JAM

Having pried off the lid of the Cleveland jam jar and finding the contents to their liking the Red Sox will go after some more of the sweet stuff this afternoon at Fenway Park. That first taste just whetted their appetites. Eddie Cicotte will likely oppose the Naps and it is to be hoped he will not have one or more of those bad periods. The Speed Boys are full of fight these days and promise to give their pitcher good support on the field and with the stick.

Kaler, it is expected will be asked to take up the Cleveland burden in the box with Easterly behind the plate. The weather is still too chilly for real baseball comfort, but a large outpouring of fans is expected when the bell rings at 3:15.

The Pilgrims are in Pittsburg in a bad way for pitchers. It may be necessary to send Tyler in again. All the Boston twirlers are working overtime these days, as none of them seems able to hold the opponents and it is necessary to work two or three of them each game.

BASEBALL NOTES.

President Ward, who is with the Pilgrims at Pittsburg, writes in a letter to a friend: "Personally, I think the team is doing very well. It stands 100 points in percentage ahead of where it was last year at this time and this in spite of the loss of Bridwell.

"Of the eight games we have lost on this trip seven of them have been fought out to the last minute and several have gone to extra innings. Only a few breaks of luck our way would have put us in good position at this time."

According to the Cubs, Frank Schulte breaks an average of fifty clubs per season. The Cub star uses bats that boast the smallest handle of any that are produced. The club is of second-growth ash and weighs forty ounces.

Scores of other major and minor leaguers who have asked to inspect the Schulte model while ordering bats invariably throw the home-run stick aside, likening it to a "switch."

Jake Stahl's game leg gets better ten per cent. every night. Then he goes out for morning practice and drops five per cent. At this rate he ought to be able to get in the game in twenty days if nothing extraordinary happens in the meantime.

Heinie Wagner went to George Cohan's show, "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway," the other night. "What do you think of those guys—making money poking fun at my home town," is what he said the next day.

Ray Collins is taking his regular work out in the morning practice at Fenway Park, and with a little warm weather will be able to take his regular turn in the box.

Dave Danforth, who was expected to take the place of the veteran, Eddie Plank, on Connie Mack's pitching staff, has been dropped to Jack Dunn's Baltimore Orioles for further seasoning.

Danforth looked like one of the biggest finds in years when Connie dug him up and put him to work last season.

Kilbane and Walsh Battle to Draw

◆◆◆

Fans Anxious to Rematch Rivals

By JACK CONWAY.

New England boxing "fans" are anxious to see Featherweight Champion Johnny Kilbane and Jimmy Walsh of this city, who fought a twelve-round draw at the Pilgrim A. A. last night matched for another bout in this city. The two little battlers have already met twice. The first was at Canton, O., on May 30, 1911. After twelve rounds of fast and furious fighting the contest was declared a draw.

The men clashed again last night at the Pilgrim A. A. and for the second time they battled on even terms for twelve rounds in one of the greatest contests that has ever been staged in the East.

Kilbane ruled a 2-to-1 favorite before the gong clanged at the opening of the first round. He was picked to vanquish Walsh in easy style.

The local idol put up a magnificent battle. He has done some grand work in the past but he surprised even his most ardent admirers.

Kilbane had a slight shade on Walsh, but it was not enough to entitle him to the decision. Walsh had the best of the mixing in the opening rounds, while Kilbane came like a whirlwind in the latter part of the fight and shaded his sturdy opponent.

The decision of Referee Maffitt Flaherty was a very popular one, and it was greeted by cheers.

The contest was witnessed by over 8,000 spectators. The crowd was an orderly one, and was handled in great shape by the management of the club. St. Botolph street was jammed an hour before the bout started, but there was no confusion.

Many prominent men in both business and public life witnessed the bout. Among the number was Mayor Fitzgerald, who was accompanied by his two secretaries, Eddie Moore and Dick Field, Councilman Attridge and other members of the City Council.

The Mayor was geratly pleased with the bout. This was the first bout that he had witnessed since George Dixon fought McGovern. After the bout the Mayor greeted Maffitt Flaherty with: "Great work, Maffitt. But what else could a 'Dearo' do?"

Kilbane was the aggressor in the majority of the rounds, but found it a pretty difficult proposition to land solid punches. Walsh boxed with his left foot extended, with his chin resting on his chest. Whenever Kilbane started a right he would lower his head, and in the majority of cases he caught the blows on his shoulder.

There were three preliminaries. Joe Nelson won from "Gunboat" Eldridge by a knockout in five rounds. Frankie Mack knocked out Tommy Murphy in five rounds, while Jack Manice outpointed Johnny McGovern in a fast six-round contest.

THE FIGHT BY ROUNDS

First Round

When the men shaped off, Kilbane jabbed with his left. Walsh jabbed with his left and crossed his right to the champion's jaw.

He followed with a stiff left hook to Johnny's jaw. The latter was taking things easy and scored a couple of light left jabs.

WALSH'S ROUND.

Second Round

The men clinched. Walsh scored a left to the head. Kilbane led with his left and fell into a clinch. Johnny jabbed three times with his left. Walsh came back strong and scored several effective body blows.

WALSH'S ROUND.

Third Round

Kilbane jabbed with his left and clinched. Walsh rocked the champion with a stiff right and left to the jaw. The latter was laughing and jabbed Walsh several times with his left. Both men were boxing in grand style.

ROUND EVEN.

Fourth Round

Walsh started the festivities by landing a smashing left to the jaw. Walsh clinched. Kilbane jabbed with his left and landed a corking good right and left to the jaw and wind.

ROUND EVEN.

Fifth Round

Kilbane opened up and sailed into Walsh for keeps. The champion landed four left jabs in rapid succession and then riddled Walsh with rights and lefts. Walsh came back strong and landed some swell punches which sent the house into an uproar.

KILBANE'S ROUND.

Sixth Round

The champion continued his fine work in this spasm. He jabbed Walsh three times with his left. Jimmy was boxing like a whirlwind and blocked many of Kilbane's punches. Walsh landed a stiff left to the wind. Kilbane came back with a left and a right to the jaw.

KILBANE'S ROUND.

Seventh Round

Jimmy Dunn's protege was working his left overtime and landed six blows in rapid succession without getting a return.

Walsh crossed a rattling good left and right to Kilbane's head. Jonny come back with a right hook to Walsh's jaw.

KILBANE'S ROUND.

Eighth Round

Kilbane scored several times with his left. Jimmy became excited and started several wild lefts and rights which failed to reach their mark. Kilbane laughed at his opponent and then bore in and pushed Walsh to the ropes.

KILBANE'S ROUND.

Ninth Round

Walsh jabbed twice with his left and when Kilbane rushed he tied him up in knots. The boxers clinched.

In a wild mixup—the best of the evening—Walsh slipped to the mat, but soon regained his feet. Jimmy was rushing things but the Cleveland boy was only too willing to mix.

WALSH'S ROUND.

Tenth Round

Kilbane led with his left and forced Walsh to give ground. He played a merry tattoo on Jimmy's nose while the crowd cheered. Johnny boxed like a whirlwind in this round and Walsh failed to get in an effective wallop.

KILBANE'S ROUND.

Eleventh Round

Walsh appeared to be saving his strength and when Kilbane rushed him he either cleverly ducked or sidestepped. Johnny started some vicious punches but Walsh's skill usually enabled him to get inside the punch.

KILBANE'S ROUND.

Twelfth Round

Walsh and Kilbane fought like wildcats in this round. Both were out to run up a lead. Walsh started to mix things but Kilbane proved the stronger of the two and forced Jimmy to give ground.

Walsh then jabbed several times with his left. Johnny retaliated with three light left jabs and followed this with a smashing right and left to Walsh's wind.

ROUND EVEN.

RINGSIDE NOTES.

Kilbane's towel slingers did not have a great deal to do between the rounds. Johnny was not tired at any stage of the game and his handlers kept outside of the ropes the greater part of the time.

Jimmy Walsh was seconded by his manager, Eddie Keevin. Johnny Fallon and Tommy Reagan, those old rivals, were also in Walsh's corner.

John McGann, former matchmaker of the Armory A. A., viewed the contest from a ringside seat. McGann is now manager of Bob Moha and has experienced wonderful success with the Milwaukee "cave dweller." Moha is now matched to meet Eddie McGoorty at Madison Square Garden.

"Kilbane is one of the real wonders of the prize ring," remarked McGann as he wended his way out of the Arena. "He is a marvelous boxer and knows the game."

The "standing room" sign was put out late yesterday afternoon. Several hundred "fans" witnessed the battle from behind the last row of seats.

Matchmaker Johnny Mooney has arranged a good card for next Tuesday night. There will be three bouts and each contest will go ten rounds to a decision. The full card is as follows. Al Delmont vs. "Irish Paddy" Callhan; Johnny Connelly vs. Young Donahue; Sandy Ferguson vs. Tom Kennedy.

Jimmy Dunn and Cal Delaney acted as Kilbane's seconds. Neither of these men wasted their time giving needless advice. Kilbane possesses a cool head and knows the boxing game through and through. It would be foolish for any second to annoy him with a lot of cheap talk during an important ring contest.

Cal Delaney is a promising Cleveland featherweight and is now under the management of Dunn. He is a clever youngster and gives promise of developing into a top notcher after he has had a little more experience.

SCOUTS LANDING COLLEGE STARS

With the closing of the college season near at hand baseball players on several of the university teams are planning today to join professional ranks for the Summer. Major league scouts have been looking over the playing timber in the college ball clubs and have reported several sterling players whom the clubs are now negotiating with.

Representatives of three major league clubs looked over the work of Pitcher George Davis, of Williams College, while he was shutting out the Princeton varsity team. Davis received several fine offers after the game and he asked time to consider them.

The New York and Chicago American League Clubs and the Pittsburg Nationals are trying to secure his services. Catcher Sterrett, of Princeton, will in all probability join the White Sox.

The crack pitcher, Hyatt, of West Point, will take a furlough of three months this Summer and pitch for the Detroit Club. Pitcher Willett, of the Detroit Club, went up to West Point and saw Hyatt perform and reported to Hugh Jennings that Hyatt will be a success.

Major league scouts are trying to secure the signature of Catcher Mayport of the University of Vermont to a contract.

By the latest edict of Ban Johnson, the "infield" ball is eliminated in the American League. In other words, when a team goes to the field after its batting inning, only the ball in play, used by the pitcher for warming up can be used.

This necessarily prohibits the infield from working, save that the shortstop gets a throw from the catcher when the latter pauses to don the mask. The object is to shorten games, which have been very lengthy this Spring. With no infield work between innings, the men will be ready whenever the catcher is.

In a way, the order, while not affecting the game, is revolutionary. For infield practice dates back as far as modern fandom can figure.

The famous infield of the old Chicago White Stockings—the National League club—Anson, Williamson and Burns, is generally credited with introducing the separate ball for between-inning workouts.

So far it must be admitted that Marty O'Toole has been somewhat of a disappointment. His wildness has cost him practically every game in which he participated. It is generally believed that the S. Framingham lad will make good, but it might be a wise idea for Clarke to keep Marty out of his regular turn for a while. Of course, Clarke is running the club and has one main object in view—to win games—and is using his best judgment but Marty has not been delivering and a rest from regular work with plenty of good hard practice would probably enable the high-priced one to locate the plate enough to keep from forcing men home.

STAR SPRINTERS WILL GO AFTER RECORDS

The Irish-American A. A. of New York has entered the following additional entries for the tryouts at the Stadium June 8: J. J. Archer, H. Cloughen, W. Conway and Alvah T. Meyer for the 100 and 200 meters, James Rosenberger and D. Valentine for the 400 meters.

Meyer is the phenomenal sprinter, and, with Craig, Nardini, the New England intercollegiate 100-yard champion; L. H. Carey and Gyn Henry competing against each other in the 100 meters (109 yards), new records are more than likely for both the 100 yards and 100 meters.

NEW LEAGUE FINDS THE SLEDDING ROUGH

The game scheduled yesterday between the Cincinnati and Cleveland clubs of the United States League was postponed because of the small attendance at the games in the last few days. Hugh McKinnon, the manager, declared that the club would remain in the league and try to make up for lost prestige. Another report is that the Washington and New York teams of the same league would be dropped.

U. OF P. HAS FLYER FOR THE BIG MEET

Pennsylvania has a new sprinter in Aldridge, who ran Brown, a 10-second man, to a six-inch finish on Saturday. It was Aldridge's second appearance of the season, and the Quakers think that with a little improvement they will have a point winner in the intercollegiate.

RILEY'S COLUMN

JOE WOOD has rounded into his best form and "Buck" O'Brien is right again. Charley Hall has not yet shown enough weak signs to worry about. Bedient is reliable, although a bit too deliberate—which is a good sign for a youngster. Eddie Cicotte looks like he is more available than he was—althought not yet in championship form. So there are more signs of pennant hope in the Red Sox camp.

* * *

WHEN you figure these pitchers out you want to remember that the wind sweeps across the Fenway Park diamond like an icy whirlwind. No such baseball weather has ever been seen before in Boston. It's as frigid as Labrador every day. The Red Sox fielders are beginning to approach gilt-edged form, but pitching and fielding baseball in the kind of climate that has been served up to the Boston clubs on their home diamond this year has been unmerciful.

* * *

THE visitors do not suffer so much as the home team, because they come from the interior, and while cool, rainy weather has prevailed generally throughout the country, there are intermittent warm days. It's the incessant, cold, driving weather that puts ball players and others out of business. The visitors get all the best of the break in weather.

* * *

IT'S a good bet that if the Red Sox played in Chicago, and the White Sox in Boston, Stahl's men would now be where Callahan's are in the league race, and Callahan's would be where Stahl's are. When the weather here becomes fit for outdoor sports, there will be an interesting race for the pennant, if Stahl keeps his men racing to the limit like Callahan does his men.

* * *

IT was good news in Boston when Russell Ford and the Yankees behind him walloped the White Sox yesterday. Red Sox followers had feared that Callahan would make a clean sweep in New York. The Yankees pinned a defeat on Callahan right at the start, and broke up that combination.

* * *

AND, by the way, the Detroit Tigers celebrated their return from their strike by handing the Senators, with Walter Johnson on the mound, a 2 to 0 defeat, in which each team made two hits. Mullin pitched as good baseball as Johnson and Johnson himself pitched as good baseball as he ever does. The strike must have put some ginger into the Tigers.

* * *

AFTER getting the jump and keeping the lead on the Pirates, the Pilgrims finally succombed and thereby they cling to last place, although the Cubs beat the Dodgers.

* * *

JOHN M. WARD maintains that his club is much better than last place material and points out that it is fully 100 points higher in the percentage table than it was last year, which is true. In fact, John M. Ward has the best National baseball club that Boston has seen in a long time, and if he and Kling just persist and keep on persisting, in spite of everything to the contrary, they'll gradually climb up higher. In any event they have fought to the last ditch and their games are worth going to see. If they only had some pennant pitchers—but what's the use?

New Yacht Racing Rules Given Out

The new racing rules of the Narragansett Bay Yacht Racing Association contain many changes including amendments to make impossible a repetition of the famous mixup over the Hugi and the Senore which took place several seasons ago.

Under the present regulations the decision of a regatta committee on a protest, so far as the facts go, will be final.

The only question which can be taken before the executive committee is one of interpretation of the rules. No new evidence can be presented to the committee.

This year the rule requiring a racing number and class letter is to be strictly enforced.

St. Louis Ball Fans Given a Warning

ST. LOUIS, May 22.—The strike of the Detroit baseball players has made itself felt here and the following notice has been posted on all uprights in the grand stand in the National League park:

"Any person using profane or abusive language directed against either home or visiting players will be expelled from the grounds."

It looks as though the Harvard ball team was in for a bad trimming this afternoon at Soldiers Field.

The big Brown bear invades the home of the Crimson with one of the strongest aggregations that has ever come up from Providence, and at just the worst time for Coach Sexton's athletes, with the pitching staff attempting to master the problems of aviation and "Heinie" Reeves, the star catcher, out of the game.

Although Felton is slated to work on the mound for the Harvard combination, the chances are that he will not get through the nine innings, for he has shown of late a most unexpected wildness, without the steadying influence of Reeves behind the bat.

Coach Sexton has changed his team around again with the hope of strengthening the batting ability of his team. Coon goes in at centrefield for Wigglesworth, Gibson takes the third sack, and Wingate leaves the third corner to relieve Jack Desha at the short field.

JACK JOHNSON OFF FOR COAST

CHICAGO, May 22.—Jack Johnson, his wife, his cook, a chauffeur, a bunch of sparring partners headed by Marty Cutler and two automobiles, will leave Chicago Saturday for Las Vegas, where the champion will train for his fight with Jim Flynn. Jack had planned to remain here until some time in June, but is dissatisfied with his training work and will start West at once to begin the real grind of preparation for the scrap.

Try-Out Entries Coming in Fast

George N. Brown of the B. A. A. and secretary of the Eastern Olympic Try-Out Committee said today:

"Entries for the Olympic Try-Outs, which are to be held in the Harvard stadium on June 8, are coming in very rapidly. It is very evident that the Irish-American Club of New York will have an extra large entry list in these games. The entries received today from that club were: J. J. Archer, R. Cloughen, W. Conway and Alvah T. Meyer, who will compete in the 100 and 200 metres; also James M. Rosenberger and D. Valentine, who will compete in the 400 metres.

"Lawson Robertson, trainer of the Irish-American Club, is very jubilant over the fact that his sprinters will have an opportunity to run on the Stadium track, as he is a firm believer that it is the fastest track in the country, and claims that Meyer, the phenomenal sprinter of the past season, is of the type of runner who wants a fast track. Robertson predicts that Meyer can break the 100 metre record of 10 4-5 seconds.

"Applications for seats keep coming in very rapidly, and unquestionably every seat will be assigned before the day of the meet."

HODGSON CHOSEN WITHOUT TRIALS

MONTREAL, May 22.—At a meeting of the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association today it was decided to allow George Hodgson to leave for Europe to take part in the Olympic games without first competing in the Olympic trials here on May 31 and June 1. This was done to allow him to compete in the English championships, and because it was considered that by previous performances he had shown himself at all distances to be in a class by himself among Canadian swimmers.

Rockingham Park Track in Fine Shape

The speed pilots who are to take part in the Memorial Day meet at Rockingham Park will begin to take their practice spins around the course Sunday.

The track will be in fine shape by that time and the management of the meet has notified the different men entered that from Sunday on they can "work out" on the track.

Harry Knight, the New England member of the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association, with W. A. Gove of the Board of Directors of the New England Aviation Company, has inspected the track to see whether it met all the requirements of the A. A. A., and stated that it was ideal.

Harry Grant and a number of other men who are in pilot cars in the race, will go over the road Sunday and put in the afternoon on the track, familiarizing themselves with the turns and other conditions.

Pick Athletes for Olympics, June 10

NEW YORK, May 22.—The athletes to represent the United States in the Olympic games will be selected at a meeting of the team selecting committee June 10, in this city.

The American Olympic committee has had conferred upon it the right to send entry blanks to as many American athletes as desired and then by cable on June 11 the men that are officially selected.

Sam Paige Leads in Chauncy Tournament

The "Eight" bowling tournament, now being conducted by Bill Beatty at the Chauncy street alleys, is making a decided hit with the hundreds of candlepin artists throughout Greater Boston.

Just to keep up interest in the thin pin game during the off season, Bill has offered two prizes for the men making the best number of "eight" in six consecutive strings. The first prize is a beautiful gold watch, while a handsome silver cup is offered as the second prize.

Sam Paige, one of the winners in the Boston AMERICAN bowling championships, is at present leading with fifty-eight of out of a possible sixty "eights." Tom Allingham is second with fifty-six.

None of the big lights of the bowling game have tried a hand at the contest yet, but as it does not close until June 1 they have plenty of time to set up a few records.

Colby Star Enters for Olympic Trials

WATERVILLE, Me., May 22.—Frank D. Nardini, the Colby sprinter, has sent to the authorities in charge of the events at the Harvard Stadium, June 8, his entry in the 110-meter event in the Olympic trials.

Nardini is in excellent condition, and it is believed the longer distance than the 100-yard dash, in which he has starred this Spring, will be an advantage rather than a disadvantage, as he has trained steadily for it.

14 RACES ON MATINEE CARD

Fourteen well-matched racing events will be pulled off at the Franklin Field Speedway, Dorchester, on Saturday afternoon by the Dorchester Driving Club, and considering the present state of the track it looks as though many records will be broken by the contesting horsemen.

Nut Boy, P. O'Hearn's fast trotter, who equalled the track record last Saturday, will be seen at his best in a three-horse event, being matched against Michael McDermott's fast Camello and Hollis Gallup's Earl King. The entries:

Games in Three Leagues on Schedule Today

◆ ◆ ◆

SCHOOLBOYS BATTLE

Games in three leagues besides a score of other school games will be played this afternoon. Outside of the league battles no games of great importance will be played, many of the big teams are having a day of rest.

Malden High and Melrose High battle in a Suburban League game at Melrose and the the result may change the positions of the teams in the league. A win for Malden will tie them for the fourth and last places with Melrose, but a win for Melrose will put the team over Somerville into the third position.

Malden High has not been very successful this season, and is at the bottom of the pile with one game won and four lost. The team has some fairly good ball players in its lineup, but many errors have been made and the pitchers have been ineffective in the pinches.

Coach Collins has not decided on his twirler to date, but it is expected that Flanders will start the game and Doyle will be ready to relieve him. Both pitchers have been hit hard this season and Melrose has already beaten them.

Ross will do the twirling for Melrose and he is expected to win the game. Ross has pitched several good games this season, but of late he has been hit hard.

* * *

Two games will be played in the Midland Interscholastic League, Framingham High playing Milford at Milford and Hudson will clash with Westboro at Hudson. Framingham is in the fight for the championship of the league and is leading at present, but must win several more games before it is assured of the title over Natick High.

Framingham has been playing great ball this season, and with a strong box man in Nichols, the followers of the team are confident that it will win the championship. Nichols has been pitching good ball and is mainly responsible for the high position of his team, although he has been getting good support. Milford is also playing fairly good ball, but its pitcher is not as strong as Nichols, and the team is in the fourth position.

* * *

Stoneham High plays Reading High in a Mystic Valley game, and this should be a good affair. The teams are about evenly matched and have been playing fairly good ball this season.

* * *

Dorchester High will play Wakefield High this afternoon at Wakefield and should prove to be the winners. Dorchester has played an improved game during the past two weeks and with three good pitchers the team is a hard opponent for any school nine. Benson or Mullane will probably work in the box for Dorchester.

* * *

Captain Billy Boles will take his Boston Latin team to Concord to play the Middlesex School nine and this should be a good game. Rindge Technical should have an easy time with Charlestown High at Charlestown. Boston College High will play Dedham at Dedham. Medford High will have Woburn for its opponent and many other fairly good games will be played.

* * *

The boys in the Rindge Technical crew will put in an extra lot of work these days when they are out. The crew is scheduled to race the Pomfret School crew on June 1 and the boys want to be in the best of shape for this race. Rindge has been showing good form the past couple of weeks and should be a formidable opponent for the Connecticut boys.

* * *

The followers of Somerville High are expecting the Red and Blue to creep up gradually in the Suburban League race. Walter Whittaker is back in his old form, and the other men on the team are playing an improved game. Everett appears to be the only team that has anything on Somerville and but one more game will be played against Cleo O'Donnell's charges and Somerville hopes to pick up on the other teams.

* * *

The schoolboy athletes are putting on the finishing touches of training today and tomorrow for the Harvard interscholastics at the Stadium on Saturday. The entry list is one of the largest ever received for this meet, so competition of the keenest sort is anticipated. All of the academies and the biggest high schools will be represented.

* * *

Harry Drew, the great Springfield High sprinter, will not be in the games. Harry is over the stipulated age limit. The followers of schoolboy athletics wanted to see the flyer against Charley Rice of Powder Point, and the battle between these schoolboys is always the hardest sort of a fight every inch.

* * *

Rice will, however, be in the 100 and 220-yard events, and he is expected to do 10 seconds and 21 3-5. Rice has been performing in this time several times this season, and as the Stadium track is one of the fastest in these parts he should not fall down.

* * *

The spectators at the game will watch with keen interest the running high jump event. Oliver Johnstone of Worcester Academy is the classiest local candidate for first place, but a schoolboy will come over from New York, and from all reports he will give the Worcester athlete a lot of trouble. He is Wesley Oler of the Pawling School of New York. Coach J. P. Riley, who is coach at the Pawling School, has been tutoring Oler for the Olympic tryouts, but he will cut loose on Saturday. Oler has been performing at six feet consistently.

* * *

Worcester Academy won the meet last year with a total of 30 points. Exeter was second with 20½, Brookline High had 13 points, Springfield 11, Andover 8½, Boston English High had 3 points, Lawrence High got a total of 3 points and Dedham High picked up a point. It is not expected that Brookline High or Springfield High, with Drew out, or Lawrence High or Dedham will figure this season. Legate School should come in for some points and Powder Point should finish up among the first three.

Changes in Gotham's Biggest Fight Club; Jim Hurst Retires

NEW YORK, May 22.—Various rumors involving the management of the Garden A. C. were industriously circulated yesterday, but news of an official nature was not forthcoming. It was said that Timothy Hurst, who arranged the McFarland-Wells and Klaus-Dillon bouts before he was stricken with pleuro-pneumonia, had decided to resign his positon because of his health, and that William Gibson, president of the Fairmount A. C. in the Bronx, would be engaged to fill Hurst's place.

When asked about the matter President S. M. Van Allen of the Garden A. C. refused to give any information one way or another. Hurst, who was at his apartments in the Garden tower, was busy dickering with several fighters' managers, but admitted when queried that he was "just able to sit up." Gibson was a target for questioners all day, but to each he gave the stereotyped answer:

"I have not been engaged to make matches for the Garden A. C. and have received no offer."

It is known that the backers of the club have become dissatisfied with the results so far attained and believe that a change in policy is needed before the club can secure profitable matches. Hurst's illness has been an unfortunate handicap, for the club has been hung up on several important bouts. The postponement of the Gibbons-Burns bout, which had been arranged for last night, was a hard blow and the club officials were bewailing their ill luck when Burns' sudden illness was made known.

EASY MEET FOR CLASSICAL.

WORCESTER, May 22.—Classical High won the majority of points in the weight events, in the inter-high school track meet. Classical finished with 25 points, South with 7 and English with 1.

Harvard, Cornell and Princeton Wait Race Call

◆ ◆ ◆

RIVAL CREWS READY

For the first time in the history of college boat racing the crews of Harvard, Cornell and Princeton meet in a race on the Charles on Thursday afternoon. The race will be rowed as near 4 o'clock as possible. The start will be from under Cottage Farm bridge and the usual 1⅞ miles course will be rowed, finishing off the Union Boat Club house.

Both visiting crews have arrived and will take practice spins on the basin today. The oarsmen are at the Hotel Victoria for meals and sleeps, but their aquatic headquarters are at the Weld boathouse which has been placed at their disposal. One of the Harvard steam launches has been turned over to each of the visiting crews.

Experts count on a win for Cornell with Harvard second. The Crimson is just emerging from a slump, and whether Wray's charges can get together by tomorrow is a question. Princeton is not considered seriously, though the shortness of the course may result in the unexpected.

To Cornell's Liking.

The two-mile distance is just to the liking of Courtney's crew which this year is pulling a shorter blade than ever before—a stroke calculated to develop speed rather than endurance.

Princeton's stroke is longer than that of either of the Tigers' rivals. Coach Spaeth believing that this style is better suited to the men that he has at his disposal, regardless of the length of the race.

Coach "Pop" Courtney of Cornell is not with his crew, but has said that this year's Ithaca eight is equally as strong as the 1911 varsity crew, which won hands down at every appearance. Six veterans are in the boat, the only men new being Distler, the stroke, and Bates, at No. 2. Courtney figures Distler a better man to rule the boat than Bowen, last year's stroke, who is laid low with sickness.

Jim Wray of Harvard has kept Newton at stroke during the last two weeks, and expressed the opinion tonight that the veteran would display the old-time form that he had on tap in the victorious contest with Yale last June. Wray declared that stroke had been his only problem this year. Up to the last ten days he had used three men in the stern of the boat in an effort to find out who was the best one. Wray said that he expected the Crimson to give a good account of itself tomorrow.

Important to Princeton.

The meet has historic importance for Princeton. It will be the first time a Tiger crew has competed away from home in twenty-eight years, and it will mark the resumption of aquatic relations between Harvard and Princeton after a lapse of thirty-eight years. In 1874 Harvard and Princeton competed against each other at Saratoga, and a number of other Eastern colleges were also entrants. Following so closely the renewal of football games between these two institutions, tomorrow's contest indicates that the rivals are to become more closely bound with athletic ties than ever before.

Rowing enthusiasts of Princeton encouraged the faculty's sanction of this race away from home, have started an agitation looking toward Princeton's participation in the annual intercollegiate regatta at Poughkeepsie, and also annual events at New London.

DELAY SWIMMING MEET.

The dual swimming meet between the Vernon Swimming Club and Melrose High School has been postponed, and will probably be held next Tuesday or a week from Friday.

May Bar M.I.T. at Philadelphia Games

The chances of the athletes of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology competing in the coming intercollegiate track games at Philadelphia appear to be very slim.

The entries of the athletes of this institution for the big games were supposed to be sent in three weeks prior to the date of the meet, but Manager Waterman was unable to get them in on time, and as a result of the delay a special meeting of the officers of the intercollegiate association will be held next Saturday to settle the matter.

It will be a big blow to Coach Kanaly if the athletes are not allowed to compete, for it has been thought that the Boston boys would be prominent in over half of the events, and could be relied upon to reach a good place in the final rating.

With Dalrymple, Guething, Germaine, Byland and the others, Coach Kanaly has a team that is about the best the Institute ever had.

President Gaddis of the Intercollegiate Association will journey to New York from Cambridge to attend the meeting and attempt to get the entries of the Institute past the laws which bar them out now.

HARVARD GOLF TEAM DEFEATS WOLLASTON

For the first time in years the Harvard Golf team defeated the Wollaston players on their links in Montclair. Harvard won five of the six contests, and the sixth match was halved. The members of the winning team were F. C. Davidson, F. Sargent, F. T. Clark, B. W. Estabrook, W. V. Booth and E. W. Rogers. The losing team was composed of C. M. Hart, R. R. Freeman, J. J. Gallagher, G. J. Murphy, C. A. Price and W. H. Thayer.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

Trading Slack; Prices Irregular In All Markets

By W. H. ROSS.

W. H. ROSS

STATE STREET, May 22.—Midday: Coppers were fairly steady when the Boston market opened, but it soon became dull and had a sagging tone. Sante Fe was an active issue and made a gain. Calumet & Hecla advanced as much as 6 points and then receded a couple.

Among stocks to recede were Old Colony, Amalgamated, Arcadian, American Zinc, Winona and Allouez. The price range was narrow.

Advices from the Old Colony property are to the effect that the drill in No. 14 hole has passed through twenty-one feet of amygdaloid and is now in sixty feet of trap. The dispatch says the drill should cut the big lode struck by Mayflower in hole No. 10 within twenty-four hours at the present rate of progress if estimates are correct.

Canadian Pacific a Feature.

Canadian Pacific was again the feature of the New York market at the opening, gaining 2½ points and touching 263⅝. The market was rather uncertain in tone at the start and most issues declined fractionally within a few minutes. There was big trading in a few specialties. U. S. Rubber lost 2¼, selling down to 63. American Smelting went off ⅝, and then rose about a point.

Lehigh Valley was one of the few roads in much demand in the earliest trading. After the first fifteen minutes Union Pacific and Reading also made gains and a stronger tone developed, with a sharp improvement in Steel common. Then a receding tendency was observed.

On the curb, which had a firm tone at the start, United Cigar Stores was the especial feature, going up 2 points to 214.

In the London market American securities were irregular, but price changes were narrow.

The London copper metal market opened steady, and spot and futures advanced 1s. 3d. each.

Big Buying of Copper.

All the reports from copper authorities indicate that the big buying is still going on and that the price tendency of the metal is upward. One of the largest consumers in this country is the National Conduit & Cable Company, and it has given its views on the situation in a statement in which it is said:

"Notwithstanding the talk about increase in production from new properties, the total gain in refinery output for the last two months in comparison with the same months of 1911 amounts to only 2,541,942 pounds. It is well known, however, that actual production has increased much more than the refinery figures show, and it is just on account of the difference between the smelter output and that of the various refining works that the question of stocks is subjected to so much criticism in certain circles.

"We must not forget that the official statistical report upon which so much attention is focused represents merely the production of copper coming from the refineries of the country, and at the same time the quantity of copper taken from the mines and imported may show up several million pounds larger than the refined product."

Two Moves by Standard Oil.

Suits to oust H. Clay Pierce and those friendly to him from the management of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company has been brought by the Standard Oil interests in a Federal court in Missouri. Up to this time the Pierce interests have won in the struggle for control. It is understood that Standard will fight them not only in the courts, but by keenest competition. This is about the only competition in sight as the result of Standard Oil dissolution.

Standard Oil has just paid a big fine to get the privilege of resuming business in Missouri and the people in that State are expecting cheaper oil until either the Pierce or the Rockefeller factions win or arrive at a mutual understanding.

The special financial correspondent in Amsterdam of the Boston AMERICAN finds evidence that Standard Oil and the Royal Dutch-Shell combine have entered into a deal which will end bitter warfare. What points toward a combine is the formation of the Netherlands Colonial Petroleum Company to work concessions in the Dutch East Indies, and the Heart newspapers' Amsterdam correspondent says:

"What makes the registration of the new company extremely interesting is the fact that it will be managed by the two managing directors of the American Petroleum Company, which latter has always been taken to merely represent the Standard Oil Company in Holland. It is therefore, assumed that the Standard Oil Company is behind the scheme, which would mark a new move in the relations of the two powerful organizations, of which the Royal Dutch-Shell combine has the support of the Paris Rothschilds. More friendly relations are understood to have been established between the Standard Oil Company and its big rival, the Royal Dutch-Shell combine, which had been engaged in a very battle for the control of a part of the world's markets in the past year."

It is expected that the combined earnings of Standard Oil companies for the first half of 1912 will break all records and to amount to more than $90,000,000.

Financial News in Brief.

The St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern road will double track all the way from St. Louis to Texarkana and will also extend its line to New Orleans this year.

Most of the recent orders for steel products have been small, but the tonnage called for is enormous in the aggregate.

It is now understood that while Louis W. Hill is to retire as president of the Great Northern he will remain with the road as chairman of the executive committee, while James J. Hill will continue chairman of directors. C. R. Gray will be president.

The new financing plan of the United States Rubber Company provides, among other things, that holders of common stock are to receive a stock dividend of $5,000,000 or 20 per cent. of the original investment. The plan offers ratably to all stockholders $10,000,000 first preferred stock at par and accrued dividend, and also provides that holders of the second preferred may virtually exchange their present stock on the basis of 100 shares of second preferred for seventy-five shares of first preferred. The increase in common stock is to be $15,000,000 and in preferred $20,000,000.

The city of Paris issued bonds to the total of $41,000,000 to get funds to extend the municipal gas system and the issue has been oversubscribed eighty times. The New York American says: "This means that the French people have subscribed to the amount of $3,280,000,000 and have actually paid in cash today more than $115,000,000, as each subscriber had to deposit $2 for each bond subscribed for."

The Harriman lines have closed additional rail contracts for 30,000 tons, which makes the total they have ordered so far this year 70,000. Another railroad order which will help the equipment trade is from the Illinois Central road for 4,000 cars.

President Robert L. Fryer of the Fidelity Trust Company of Buffalo has notified Chairman Pujo of the House Banking and Currency Committee, which is investigating the money trust, that his institution will not answer the probe questions propounded. This is the first refusal of its kind made to the committee by a New York banking institution, and all bankers in that State are now awaiting the result.

All the stock markets in Europe are depressed by the international politics being played at present by Russia as well as by fears of serious monetary trouble in Germany. French banks have been withdrawing loans made in Berlin since September and Germans fear New York will follow the same course.

There is talk to the effect that when Texas Company directors meet an increase in disbursements from a 5 to a 7 per cent. annual rate may be authorized for next Fall. The reduction in earnings which made necessary the reduction in dividends from a 10 to a 5 per cent. annual rate was not due to a falling off in business, but to lowered prices received for oil.

The Mutual Credit National Bank will be established near Union Square in New York and have a capital of $500,000. The organization committee will perfect plans within a few days.

CITY PLANNERS WILL MEET ON WEDNESDAY

The opening session of the fourth National Conference on City Planning, which meets here at the City Club next week, will be on Wednesday at 10 a. m., when President Alfred L. Aiken of the Worcester County Institution for Savings will tell Boston bankers how they may assist in checking the growth of the "three-decker" houses in the suburbs. A lively discussion is predicted, as there will be many real estate men present who doubtless will disagree with President Aiken. Another proposal to be discussed will be the advisability of replacing electric cars in the crowded part of the city with electric motor buses.

LIFEBOAT ORDER SENT TO BOSTON

Peremptory order was received at the steamship company offices in Boston this afternoon from the Department of Commerce and Labor at Washington, directing the companies to limit the number that can be accommodated in the life boats carried. The order takes effect at once. It is the direct result of the sinking of the Titanic and the investigation by the Senate Committee headed by William Alden Smith. The command will be effective for every American port.

Receipt of the order caused a stir along the waterfront and in the steamship offices. It was asserted a petition probably would be sent to Washington in the hope of getting time to equip Boston liners with additional lifeboats and rafts.

Washington Order.

The order from Washington says:

"Each and every steamer navigating the ocean must be provided with sufficient lifeboat capacity to accommodate every person on board, including passengers and crew, except infants in arms."

Every inspector of the staff of the United States steamboat inspection service, with offices at No. 33 Broad street, was told to examine every steamer entering or leaving Boston. New certificates must be issued to all liners, ocean-going and coastwise, and each craft be inspected thoroughly.

Nantasket, Bass Point and all other shore steamers must comply with the order. Steamships which have a capacity of 1,000 but have accommodations in their lifeboats for only 250 or 300 must limit their number of passengers.

The first steamer to be inspected was the Calvin Austin. Although she has accommodation for 1,000 passengers, the new certificate permits the carrying only of 272, the number of lifeboats will carry. The new certificate will continue in effect until more lifeboats and rafts are added. The inspectors also visited the steamer Bay State.

May Affect Hospital.

The new regulations will play havoc with the steamboat traffic, as many vessels will be compelled to carry less than half their capacity. Even the Boston Floating Hospital may be affected, for it makes daily trips far down the harbor carrying more than 250 patients and a crew of twenty-one men, with only six lifeboats and one raft on board.

The local steamboat inspectors intend to enforce the order to the letter. Andrew J. Savage, inspector of boilers, said today the new order leaves them no leeway and the inspection will go ahead as rapidly as possible.

Another matter that is disturbing the local inspectors is the dismissal of Captain William A. Carlton, who for seven and a half years held the office of inspector of hulls in Boston. The reason for the dismissal was not given out, and both Captain Carlton and Supervising Inspector John B. Sloane declined to discuss it.

It is feared the new inspection might affect the new all-water route between New York and Boston, which was to begin operations in ten days.

Steamship officials this afternoon declared they wished to obey the order, but could not do so at once because it was impossible just now to buy lifeboats. They declared the demand had been so great since the sinking of the Titanic the manufacturers could not supply it.

"Work" His First Principle

THE GORTONS AND TWINS

DR. D. A. GORTON.

Dr. Gorton, Congratulated on Birth of Twins, Explains Ideas of Marriage.

Dr. David Allyn Gorton, the Brooklyn physician whose wedding a year ago to his stenographer was regarded as a romance, is today, at the age of eighty, being flooded with congratulations on the arrival of twins at his home. He is the proudest papa in America. The babies are the picture of health at the home of their parents, No. 632 Eleventh street, Brooklyn. The boy has been named Allyn, after the doctor, while the girl has been named Leonora.

Dr. Gorton's wife is forty years of age, and the romance which their friends thought they saw in their wedding appears to have been one of the more philosophical order. As Bertha Rehbein, the present Mrs. Gorton was Dr. Gorton's stenorgrapher and literary secretary. It appears that the aged physician, who is a student of the theory of the control of sex as advanced by Dr. Eufurt, the famous German scientist of half a century ago, had been looking about for the proper mother for the child of his ideal—the son who should be brought into being endowed with everything that heredity could give him.

Dr. Gorton wanted a boy—he got one, but, to his joyful surprise, a little sister also made her advent into the world.

Dr. Gorton's theory of the determination of sex is the same as that of Dr. Eufurt, the German scientist. Knowledge of nature's simple law, Dr. Gorton believes, should enable man to control the sex of offspring as easily as scientists now regulate the pollenation of plants. But while this knowledge, perfected, might serve its useful purpose in balancing the number of males and females of the human race, it is not the great purpose toward which Dr. Gorton believes social science should work. What he is looking toward, and wishes his newly born son to battle for, is the breeding up of a perfect race. To this end he would have the State regulate marriage and put an end to the propagation of the unfit.

HINT AVENGER KILLED WOMAN

Determined to run down the man who strangled Mrs. Lillian Jewar in her apartment in the Hotel Baldwin, No. 306 Northampton street, four detectives today made a house to house canvass of the neighborhood at Columbus avenue and Northampton street in search of some one who saw the woman in the company of a man late Friday night.

The fact that a Canadian girl who lived at the woman's apartments was recently deported, following revelations to the immigration authorities, is thought by the police to have some bearing on the case. They will endeavor to establish if the woman was slain for revenge by some friend of this girl.

Charles W. Hopping, a waiter, who was held as a suspect in the case, was released after a ten-hour grilling by Chief Inspector Dugan and Captain John E. Driscoll of the East Dedham Street Station. He established an alibi.

PHYSICIAN STARTS HEART; SAVES LIFE

NEW YORK, May 22.—In all truth it can be said that Miss Anna Loebenstein came back out of the valley of the shadow of death. She owes her life to Dr. Charles G. McMullin, who set her heart to pumping again after it had ceased to beat.

Miss Loebenstein's sister, in care of Dr. Louis P. Faust of this city, was suffering recently from gallstones. It was necessary to operate on her, and she was taken to the Ellis Hospital here.

She had succumbed, it was thought, to the shock of the operation.

When Spring Came On, But Never Since Taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Mrs. A. Hopkins, 225 East Ragle St., East Boston, Mass., writes: "Years ago I learned what a good medicine Hood's Sarsaparilla is. When spring came on I was thoroughly exhausted and obliged to take my bed. I thought I would rather die than be so tired. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before long was perfectly well. Since then, spring has never come without my having Hood's Sarsaparilla."

THE TYPHOON!!

A Story of Japanese Plotters—Love, Mystery and Tragedy—Based on the Great Play Now Running in New York

By J. W. McCONAUGHY

Copyright, 1912, by [illegible]

KOBOHASHI rang for tea, and when it was brought the trio settled themselves comfortably about the room, the two younger men smoking cigarettes as calmly as if they were gathered to discuss a program for the evening's entertainment.

Joshakawa cleared his throat and addressed Monotario.

"It is an echo of Tokoramo's trouble," he said quietly, in the voice of a man beginning a story which he feels certain will entertain his audience. He paused and Monotario nodded and waited. His snapping, black eyes alone betrayed his close attention.

His Instructions

"You will remember, Monotario, that when Hironari confessed to the murder," resumed Joshakawa, "and we had the servant shipped safely off, we supposed that there was nothing more to be feared. Unfortunately, we did not make allowance for the damaging possibilities in the evidence of one other person."

Again he paused and Monotario waited.

"Do you remember the Feast of the Little Children, the day of the murder?"

Monotario nodded again and murmured a "Yes."

"You came to Tokoramo's house with the others and somewhat later than Kobohashi and Dr. Omari and myself. Did you notice two women that you probably passed in the same street?"

"No, I don't remember noticing any women," replied Monotario quietly.

"These two women had just left Tokoramo's house," explained the old man. "One of them returned later. Tokoramo murdered her. The other is still at large, and the police know that she was intimate with the murdered woman. Now, you can see the danger. This girl, Teri, she's a woman of the stage, undoubtedly knows that Tokoramo and the dead woman were on friendly terms. She was taken to the house the very day of the murder by the now dead woman and presented to Tokoramo.

"Anything that she can tell the police need not necessarily incriminate Tokoramo, but it will make a very dangerous situation, and certainly result in his arrest. This must be avoided at all costs."

Another inclination of the head was the young man's only sign that he understood perfectly.

"This can be done only by making absolutely sure that the woman will be out of reach of the police until Tokoramo has finished his work," concluded Joshakawa.

"Can she be induced to leave the country?" suggested Monotario.

Joshakawa frowned at him and stirred impatiently in his chair.

"My son," he said bitingly, "Kobohashi and I did not call you into this matter so that you might make suggestions which we have already considered and abandoned as impracticable. You are a very astute and trustworthy young man, and when you have sufficient years you will make as good a general as you are now a private."

The young man bowed his head and took the rebuke with a muttered apology.

"What is to be the plan, my father," he ventured after a short pause. Joshakawa's brows came together again.

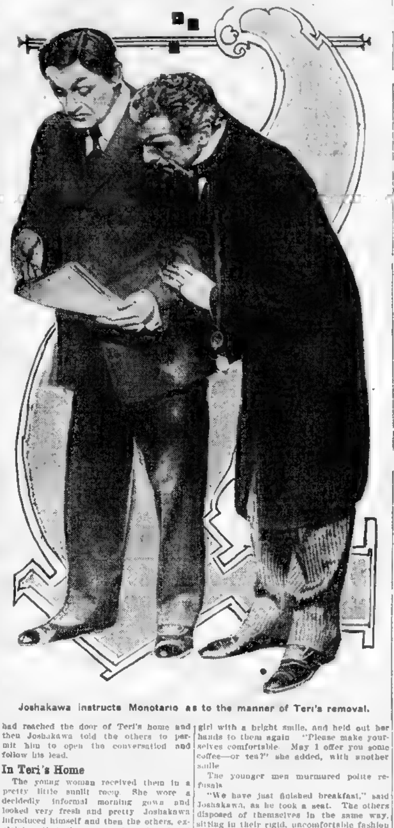
"We have not yet fully decided," he replied. "We are going to call on the young lady this morning in the hope that something in the conversation may suggest a plan."

"I understand," said Monotario. "Am I to go with you?"

"Yes," replied the old man. "You will have an opportunity to make an estimate of the young woman and know how to deal with her—as you will be the agent in whatever plan we fix upon."

After a little further discussion which was unimportant as to results the three went out into the bright Summer morning and walked in the direction of Teri's apartments. It was a day to gladden the heart and quicken the pulse. The sun blazed down from a sky of flashing blue steel and touched the leaves of the swaying trees with sparks of silver fire. About them a thousand birds lifted up their songs in one of the glorious concord of heaven and earth; but all this was unnoticed by the three who walked in silence, their minds filled with the dark business that had brought them forth.

TERI'S DOOM IS SEALED.



Joshakawa instructs Monotario as to the manner of Teri's removal.

They did not exchange a word until they had reached the door of Teri's home and then Joshakawa told the others to permit him to open the conversation and follow his lead.

In Teri's Home

The young woman received them in a pretty little sunlit room. She wore a decidedly informal morning gown and looked very fresh and pretty. Joshakawa introduced himself and then the others, explaining that they were close friends of Tokoramo.

"Then you are twice welcome," said the girl with a bright smile, and held out her hands to them again. "Please make yourselves comfortable. May I offer you some coffee—or tea?" she added, with another smile.

The younger men murmured polite refusals.

"We have just finished breakfast," said Joshakawa, as he took a seat. The others disposed of themselves in the same way, sitting in their rigid, uncomfortable fashion on the edge of the chairs.

Teri waited politely for the visitors to open the subject of their call, and Joshakawa regarded her with a fatherly smile.

"You are no doubt wondering why we should have intruded," he said in the warm voice of a kindly old man.

Teri flushed slightly in embarrassment, and murmured that friends of Tokoramo were always welcome at her house.

"It is about him that we have called," said the spokesman; and if Kobohashi felt that this was getting rather dangerous ground he made no sign.

"Only last evening Tokoramo was talking to me about you," purred the old villain. "He told us of your kindness and many attentions to him in this time of trouble. We have taken—I have taken the liberty of calling on you and bringing these other friends of Tokoramo's so that we might thank you in person."

The girl flushed again and looked about the room.

"[illegible] speak of," she said.

"It is what I would have expected you to say," declared Joshakawa heartily. "But we who are his closest friends, think otherwise. He is like a son to me, and like a brother to the others and he is engaged in work that is of the highest importance to himself and his people. My dear young lady, it would be impossible for us to exaggerate the gratitude we feel towards you for your interest in our friend's health!"

"Oh!" exclaimed Teri. "I haven't done anything for him. He won't let me. I should think that you who have known him so much longer would be able to make him take care of himself. I am so worried about him!" And the girl's eyes grew big and serious.

"You are worried about him?" repeated Joshakawa, politely questioning. "Why do you think there is anything serious the matter with him?"

The girl hesitated, started to speak, stopped, and at last she said with some restraint:

"Well, I suppose it is no secret to you that he was in love with my friend Ilona Ketter who"— she flushed slightly and broke off.

Joshakawa nodded encouragingly and came to her aid.

"You must not be afraid of embarrassing us," he said, in grave, gentle tones. "The girl was murdered by one of our countrymen and it is a shame to our country; but we cannot help it, and we face the fact with as much philosophy as possible and with some sympathy for the unfortunate boy."

"It must be a painful subject for you, fraulein," added Kobohashi; "but for that I would take the liberty of adding that not the least part of our grief is the thought of your suffering over the loss of your friend."

Teri's lips trembled and her eyes filled.

"Ilona was the best friend I ever had," she said, in a low voice. Then she went on steadily: "But she is gone now, and she loved Tokoramo. The best that I can do for her memory is to help the man she loved all I can."

Joshakawa murmured that he understood, and the girl, gaining confidence, began to talk warmly about Tokoramo's health.

"Ilona is dead and that can't be helped now," she said, "but you men who are such warm friends of Tokoramo's will have him dying soon if you don't stop him!"

Joshakawa sat up with a very good imitation of a look of concern.

"Dying?" he ejaculated.

THE Little Boy ran into the house with a warm little fistful of discouraged-looking dandelions.

"Here's a beautiful bouquet for you, mamma," said the Little Boy, "and, mamsy, I want to ask you somefin—somefin' secret."

"Well," said the Little Boy's Mother, pinching her right hand with her left very hard to keep from rumpling the Little Boy's hair back out of his eyes in the way he hates, "well, what is the secret question?"

And the Little Boy leaned so close to his mother that she could feel a kind of soft warmth in the air. "Mamma," said the Little Boy, speaking very softly, "mamma, is it tomorrow yet?"

"No!—I mean yes, Little Boy," said the Mother, hesitating an instant and then answering quite decidedly. "Yes, Little Boy, it is tomorrow—right now."

"Oh!" cried the Little Boy, beginning to dance like some kind of a strange, merry little toy wound up. "Oh, then we can go into the real country and pick real flowers with smelling to them, and watch the real grass grow—and—and"

"Yes, indeed," said the Little Boy's Mother, "we can do all these things and we will, too." And she took the Little Boy and the Little Boy's sister and put on their rough, heavy shoes and their good dark coats, and she tied up a box of sandwiches and some cookies with raisins in them, and away they all went to the real country to see the real flowers with real smelling to them, and to watch the real grass grow and to hear the birds up in the trees telling each other all the real news about yesterday and today and tomorrow and all the time there ever is or ever will be.

And it was cool in the shade and warm in the sunshine, and it was thirsty work walking, and there was a real well by the real roadside, and a real woman at the door of the real farmhouse gave them a real drink and took them out to the barnyard and let them see a real calf before it had begun to worry about being a cow and acting respectable.

And there was a rowdyish little stream, running nowhere in particular, and of course, there were fish in it somewhere—even if it was only an inch deep; and all the real willows were out; you could smell them a long way off with your eyes shut.

Once a hen flew clucking across the road, and after her there came peeping, one, two, three, four, six little yellow things, all peeping for their lives and holding their foolish stubs of wings up and running like mad, and asking the old hen, so the Little Boy thought, whether it was tomorrow yet. And the old hen was very cross and kept saying, "No, no, of course not."

And the Little Boy stood on a high stone and watched the little yellow chickens and pitied them because they were in today, yet when he was in the glorious tomorrow. And he named them, one by one, Daddy Rogers and Miss Busy, and James Metcalf and Rebecca—and the others wouldn't wait to be named but ran away, peeping louder than ever.

"Poor things," sighed the Little Boy, "poor little things. Now they'll never know what to say when they want to call each other and find out if it is tomorrow yet."

And the sun shone and the Spring Beauties nodded from the edge of the woods, and the shooting stars gleamed in the meadows and down by the rowdy little stream that came from nowhere, the violets stooped under their green parasols and tried to see themselves in the clear brown water, and they pretending to be so shy and modest too.

Over in the broad field the meadow lark whistled like a merry hearted little boy calling to his beloved vagabond, the dog, who follows him by day and by night step for step, and breath for breath.

"Follow me," whistled the lark high and clear. "Follow me, for where I am is Spring." And the Little Boy ran and shouted and whirled round and round with pure delight. And the sister, who ought to be little and who isn't little at all, any more, jumped over fences and hung from low limbs of accommodating trees, and broke supple whips of willow, and was a fairy princess riding a milk white steed, and then she was a circus rider in gorgeous skirty coats, and then she was a great Queen and held her nose high in the air, and then she was a run-away colt and whinnied and kicked up her heels and no one said "Oh, Oh, Little Girl. Your knees are showing every minute."

And when the sun began to sink the Little Boy crept close to his Mother on one side, and the sister, who ought to be little, crept close to her mother on the other side, and they all sat down on a fallen log and watched the glory of the Western skies. And they spoke no more, neither laughed nor sang, and when it was time to go the Little Boy leaned close to his Mother again and whispered: "Mother, I'm glad this was tomorrow, aren't you?"

"Yes," said the Little Boy's Mother, and she was very glad it was tomorrow right then and there. Tomorrow, the glorious tomorrow, the hopeful tomorrow of joy and kindness, and of light hearted and simple love of living and all that living means.

"I might have said that it was 'today,'" said the Little Boy's Mother, as the three walked homeward in the soft Spring twilight, "I might have said to the Little Boy, 'tomorrow has not come yet my son' and it would have been true, too, if I had said so.

"I'm glad I didn't—aren't you, Little Girl?"

And the sister, who ought to be little, smiled the strange, mysterious smile she has when she looks as if she heard sweet music and could not tell where it came from, or exactly what it meant, but only that it was sweet and soothing, and as yet—far away.

"Yes," she said, "Mother, I am very glad," so all the three were very glad together.

And in the evening, when the stars were out and the new moon looked down from the edge of a feathery cloud, the Little Boy's Mother sat and looked at the moon and at the stars and at the floating clouds and wished and wished—after the fashion she had followed when she was little and had trouble waiting for tomorrows, and some days that never came.

"Star light, star bright," said the Little Boy's Mother, "first star I've seen tonight, wish I may, wish I might, have the wish I wish tonight," and she raised her two forefingers in a sort of invocation that goes with the old rhyme to make it mean anything.

"Wish I may, wish I might," and what do you think she wished there in the light of the stars and the young moon?

"I wish," she said softly, "that all the tomorrows of delight and hope and joy may turn into todays for the whole race of us, just as this today turned into glorious tomorrow for the happy three of us."

And on the soft air of the Spring night a gentle fragrance seemed to rise like a sigh of mild content, and all at once she saw again the smile of the little girl, as if she heard sweet music far away.

Woes of the Beginner

SUDDENLY the little stenographer nodded energetically at the bookkeeper to call his attention to a certain girl in the [illegible].

"That's she," whispered the little stenographer.

The bookkeeper watched the girl enter the [illegible], watched her until [illegible] beyond his sight. Then he turned around for information.

"Well," he queried, "what is she? Actress, beauty doctor, suffragette or what?"

"Why, that's that girl I told you about—that girl I came down in the car with last week," explained the little stenographer [illegible].

"That you—rode—down in the car with?" The bookkeeper was [illegible] puzzled. "Why, I can't remember any one but some little scared beginner that you've told me [illegible]."

[illegible]

[illegible] for her experience and ability!"

A Tearful Sigh

The little stenographer smiled reminiscently. "Think of it," she said. "There I sat reading and I heard some one give a little sob. So I looked around and found [illegible] with [illegible] handkerchief all wet and [illegible] before her so mixed up between her tears and her study that she hardly knew her own name.

"I waited until she looked at me, and [illegible] I asked her what was the matter [illegible] of sympathy was [illegible] she opened her whole heart [illegible]. And she looked just awful [illegible] the powder all wiped [illegible] so that it shone dreadfully, and her white waist stained with tears and her hands all pencil marked from trying to write and cry at the same time. So it wasn't a bit hard to be sympathetic.

"The first thing she said was, 'Oh, are you a stenographer?' And when I said that I was she exclaimed: 'How can you sit [illegible] back on your way [illegible] work [illegible] got [illegible] position?'

"I told her that I never thought about the work until I got there. Then she said 'Oh, I'll never, never be able to think about anything else in the world!' She just knew that she'd make a great big failure of it, for she never could remember her word signs and her phrases, and even after she'd managed to write what was dictated, she knew she'd never in the world be able to write it out on the typewriting machine!

"She looked around at the other girls in the car, all talking or reading or thinking pleasant thoughts, none of them a bit worried looking, and she simply couldn't understand it! She thought every girl ought to have a notebook and some of her firm's letters, practicing the most used words in that particular business so she could manage to do the work.

"I felt so sorry for her! She was simply scared to death and was on her way to begin working at her first job. She looked upon business men as ogres who were waiting to jump at her and tell her all she didn't know—tell her that she couldn't fill the position! She hadn't the least hope of success, and she didn't see why the business colleges let pupils finish there before they were able really to go to work."

He Comforted Her

"Of course I comforted her as well as I could. I told her that the men generally had to think so hard when they were dictating that she would find it troublesome to write slow enough for them at times. And I told her that the men were always wonderfully good to new girls, for they knew how frightened the girls were; and how if she couldn't read her notes one of the old girls would always be glad to help her out, knowing something about the business. I told her that in a week she would laugh at her fears and would be ready to [illegible] other beginners to come on in—but she wouldn't believe me.

"When I found she was going to be on our floor here I promised to help her all I could. Much good it did! Why, the second day I didn't know the girl. She had straightened up and looked like an experienced business woman of five years' training. She possessed all the assurance and poise of a mature success. You saw her yourself today! It just shows what fear does, doesn't it?" The little stenographer paused for comment upon her story.

But the bookkeeper was buried in his figures. The trials of the beginner were without interest to him so long as they had a happy ending. Success is so commonplace!

Your Watch

IT is a matter of everyday occurrence for a person to say to his watchmaker: "Here is a watch which you sold me some ten years ago. It has always gone well until lately, when it has taken to stopping without any apparent cause."

The people who speak in this way little think of the amount of work a watch has performed in this space of time, and might be astonished at the following figures.

In ten years, which includes two leap years, and consequently a total of 3,652 days, the hour hand has made 7,304 and the minute hand 87,648 revolutions. The end of an average minute hand travels over 10,821 yards—over six miles. The second hand has made 5,258,880 revolutions, and its extremity has traversed [illegible] miles. The escape-wheel has made 52,588,800 revolutions, and as it has fifteen teeth it has come 788,832,000 times in contact with each pallet. The balance has made 1,577,644,000 vibrations, and any point on the outside of the rim has covered a distance of about 50,000 miles, and that is equal to twice the circumference of the earth.

Safe Hints

A girl thinks a young man who spends his money freely is the whole thing—but if she marries him and finds he has spent it all she changes her mind.

Once in a while a woman buys something at a bargain sale, only to discover after she gets home that it was just what she wanted.

When a man begins by saying, "Of course, it is none of my business"—you may as well stand aside and let him butt in.

Itching, Burning Humor on Face

Covered With Scabs. Very Embarrassing. Resinol Cured.

Here is proof indeed of what Resinol will do for sufferers from tormenting, unsightly skin humors. Mr. Will D. Hays, Russellville, Tenn., says:

"I caught sycosis or barber's itch. My face would get to smarting and burning, and great red welts would come on it, and in a few hours my face would be covered with scales or scabs the size of wheat bran. It would itch a great deal and the more I rubbed it the worse it became. It even got up in the edge of my hair. It certainly was very embarrassing as well as annoying, too, as everyone wanted to know what was the matter with my face. I tried several different local remedies, but they did not do any good. Then I sent for a small jar of Resinol Ointment and that one jar cured me inside of ten days. I had had the barber's itch for thirty or forty days. I believe Resinol will do the same for others." (Dated April 11, 1912.)

Piles Cured in 3 Days.

"I used Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment for itching piles and they gave me within twelve hours permanent relief. I continued their use for three days and have had no return of the symptoms. I had tried several preparations without relief."—D. O. Sanderson, Pomeroy, Wash.

Resinol Ointment stops itching instantly, and with the aid of Resinol Soap is the ideal healing application for eczema and other skin and scalp eruptions, pimples, blackheads, dandruff, burns, scalds, sores, boils, ulcers and piles. At the age of eight the baby's features begin to change and the sweet baby look gives way to the humorous, toothless expression.

That is often enough to clean out the nasal passages and is a simple way to cure the snuffles. If none of these things help, see the doctor and have nose and throat carefully examined for unhealthy growths.

Care of the Hair

The hair should come in for much more attention now too. It is often said that cutting it and keeping it short will improve the growth. That is not necessarily true. Cutting the hair frequently makes it somewhat coarse, but it does not produce a single extra hair. However, short hair is more comfortable for the child and is easier to keep clean, so that it is advisable to keep it short up to the age of ten or twelve years old.

A child's hair should be kept very clean. Washing it [illegible] every ten days is not too often. [illegible] anything but good soap on [illegible] rinse very thoroughly in [illegible] water.

Getting On In Life

No. 6—THE BLOOM ON THE JOB.

By THOMAS TAPPER.

It is stale fruit that leads to illness. And it is stale [illegible] that leads to discontent.

Fruit becomes stale when it remains untouched too long. [illegible] work.

But the fruit [illegible] bloom and [illegible] are on it [illegible] you health [illegible] job when [illegible] bloom and blush [illegible] on it and it g[illegible] and several [illegible] things.

What is the bloom of the job?

It is the promise [illegible] out of it that assures us that when the job is done we have accomplished one more thing; that we have laid another brick in the temple of character; raised ourselves up in the world by another mile [illegible] of an inch.

"Is it worth while?" you ask.

It all depends on your frame of mind.

I know a college professor who seems to have lost all his ambition, and efficiency because he knows that in a few years he will receive a pension income. That fact has taken all the snap out of him.

Another man has raised a family of four sons and started them off in life with no further fortune than this single sentence of advice:

IF YOU WANT TO SUCCEED LOAD YOURSELF UP WITH RESPONSIBILITIES.

The bloom is off the job for the college professor. It will always be on the job with the four boys if they follow instructions.

In other words the bloom is the joy of work. It is true that we all have to do disagreeable tasks, BUT THERE IS NO PRACTICAL GAIN IN MAKING THEM MORE DISAGREEABLE BY HATING THEM.

It is better to look such a job straight in the eye, and say:

"No you cannot come it over me by looking ugly. You and I are going to have a wrestling match. I am going to throw you and sit on your chest until you give in."

This raises a man's ambition and makes him win. It also shows that if you want your job to have a bloom YOU MUST PUT IT ON.

You must look at it that way.

You must argue with yourself and call yourself a coward, and gradually become boss of yourself, then the job will shine like a golden opportunity.

On the other hand, if you do not care, if you would rather coddle yourself than be a man, if you prefer to let small things run you instead of running small things, then the job will be about as bright as a hole in the wall on a pitch dark night.

The reason a man lets a woman stand in a street car is because HE CANNOT MAKE UP HIS MIND TO GET UP. Such a man does not necessarily lack the qualities of a gentleman. He probably feels sorry to see a woman stand. But he has let little things boss his mind for so many years that he simply cannot act quickly.

Watch him.

He gets behind his paper, and gradually slips and slouches down in his seat until he no more looks like a man made in the divine image (that is what he [illegible] himself to be on Sunday) than a bag of meal looks like the Apollo Belvedere.

All you have to do to paralyze the mind is to let things get the upper hand. Put them off, fear them, dodge them, neglect them; then one fine day you find that something worse than cramp has possession of your brain. You want to get up and give the lady your seat, but you cannot. You simply slip farther and farther down into your coat collar, and there you are—a true picture of what you have become by missing the bloom on things.

When the four walls of life begin to shut in on us, the room we live in gets smaller. THE FIRST THING TO DISAPPEAR ARE THE WINDOWS.

Then the shutting up process goes on until we are pressed out of existence.

Is it fate?

No. It is pure laziness.

Why should we be crushed to death in a compressing machine when, by a turn of the mind we can make those four walls move the other way, giving us a larger and yet larger room with more and more windows?

There is only one answer. We prefer being mentally paralyzed to being alive.

There can be a bloom on every job, big or little, but you must put it one. And you can put it on by learning to keep your head well up out of your coat collar and never slumping into an imitation of a bag of meal. There is no divine image about that.

ONCE upon a time there was a Working Women's Convention pulled off in which the Ladies who had Jobs that had a Pay Envelope Attachment met together to hurl Bouquets at themselves and pass [illegible] denouncing the Useless Parasite Female who did nothing but live at Home and let a Husband support her.

Oratory was on Tap, and after each female Wonder had told how she became a Lady Dramatist, or an Authoress, or an Actress, or a Lady Purchasing Agent, or a Lady Longshoreman, or something else at which she worked four Hours a Day, and made money enough to Wear French Confections and Diamonds, the Balance of the Bunch gave her the Glad Hand and Chautauqua Salute.

At last, however, a Reporter who was Present, observed a small and Dowdily Dressed [illegible] Woman who was sitting Far Back, chewing the Rag in silence, and he went to her and thus addressed her:

"My sister," he said, "tell me why you are Papering the Wall instead of getting your Share of [illegible] and why you miss this Glorious Opportunity to hand yourself a few Heartfelt Words of Praise?"

The Busy Parasite

"Alas!" cried the Humble One, "I am not a Working Woman. I have done nothing that would Entitle me to ask my [illegible] Creatures to listen to me, for I am one of those Justly Despised Parasite Women who does nothing but be a Wife and Mother.

"It is true that I have to Rise with the Worm who gets up even before the Early Bird, because I must Prepare Breakfast for my Family, so that it may be ready when they Awake, and from that time on I have to Strain on the Collar all Day until after my Husband and Children [illegible] to Bed at night [illegible] comfortable [illegible] Snap, because I have [illegible] and that I ought to [illegible] that I do not have to Earn my [illegible] Living as so many Unfortunate [illegible] do.

"It is, of course, a great Comfort to Know that not much is expected of the Domestic Woman in the Way of Brains, yet it comes my way to [illegible] I am expected to be able to Referee a [illegible] between my Children and Settle Disputes whose points are so Mixed they would tie the Supreme Court up in a knot.

"Personally, I do not care for Amateur Detective Work, yet I am expected to be a Sherlock Holmes, who can always locate the Corkscrew, or the Hatchet, or week before last's Sunday Paper, and who can follow up any kind of a Clew as to where my Husband left his Latch Key.

"Neither do I pose as a Financier [illegible] I must know how to [illegible] where [illegible] out of the [illegible] make over my Glad Rags at Home and wear them with a Brought in from Abroad Air. ❧ ❧ The Nest Builders ❧ ❧

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

ALMOST every girl who is in love with love, and all girls are, or I pity them, at some time in her life begins to store away odd pieces of lace and embroidery; a pretty cushion cover, a doily or two, pretty and dainty personal articles.

These she keeps sacredly by themselves, and occasionally gets them out and turns them over with a happy look in her eyes, and then she puts them back again.

Is she engaged to be married? Not necessarily. Has she a lover? Perhaps not. It is immaterial.

But she has something which represents both the engagement ring and the [illegible] dreams.

And having these dreams, she is as happy as if every day she had picked up [illegible]!

[illegible] very prosaic world of ours would [illegible] endurance if it were not for the [illegible]

[illegible] says an old Arab proverb, "is [illegible] of two parts—The past which [illegible] dream, and the future which is a w[illegible]"

[illegible] would say more, and that is that the [illegible] dream part, influences the future, [illegible] wish part; indeed, it extends into the future till one doesn't know if one is [illegible] or wishing.

Youth the Time to Dream

Youth is the time to dream, and it is a way of nature that girls dream of nests of their own while fledglings in the nests of the parent birds.

Love is alluring, and nothing looks so rosy and promising as a home of one's very own. It is the home-instinct, and the girl who keeps a Dream-Box into which she folds away pretty little dainties for her own home some day, should be encouraged.

It is the origin, the beginning, the foundation of the instinct that makes the good housewife. A girl with a Dream-Box has no selfish plans for idleness with a husband in a boarding house.

She is not planning for a nest in which she will be idle all day. If she is like the sweet majority there goes into that Dream-Box little kitchen towels and pretty little kitchen aprons.

They are symbols of labor, and labor where love is means more to a girl than idleness without it.

This little collection of articles to be in readiness when he comes with a wedding ring and a preacher does not imply discontent with her own home. Unless it can be discontent that inspires a fledgling to try its wings. If that be discontent, then it is the right kind, for there would be no progress without it.

The Natural Instinct

It is a natural instinct for development, for growing, for the next step ahead.

It is a pretty little hope, a pleasant little sentiment, that should be encouraged. It is a part of the most pleasant dream one ever enjoys in this nightmare existence, and so, my girls, I say girls should be encouraged to dream on.

A LITTLE SAGE AND SULPHUR RESTORS COLOR TO GRAY HAIR AND MAKES IT GROW

Who does not know the value of Sage and Sulphur for keeping the hair dark, soft and glossy and in good condition? As a matter of fact, Sulphur is a natural element of hair, and a deficiency of it in the hair is held by many scalp specialists to be connected with loss of color and vitality of the hair. Unquestionably, there is no better remedy for hair and scalp troubles, especially premature grayness, than Sage and Sulphur, if properly prepared.

The Wyeth Chemical Company of New York put out an ideal preparation of this kind, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, in which Sage and Sulphur are combined with other valuable remedies for keeping the hair and scalp in clean, healthy condition.

If your hair is losing its color or constantly coming out, or if you are troubled with dandruff or dry, itchy scalp, get a fifty-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur from your druggist, use it according to the simple directions and see what a difference a few days' treatment will make in the appearance of your hair.

All druggists sell it, under guarantee that the money will be refunded if the remedy is not exactly as represented.

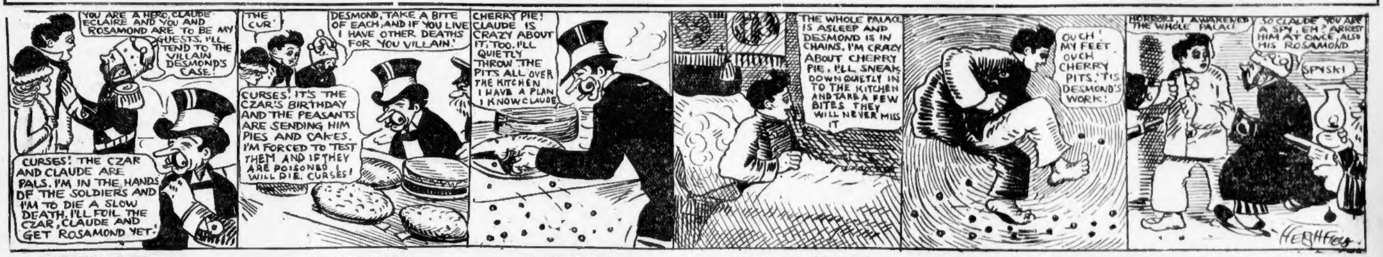
Too Much Fondness for Cherry Pie Gets
Claude Eclaire in Bad with the Czar

Copyright, 1912, by the National News Association

By Hershfield



YOU ARE A HERO, CLAUDE ECLAIRE AND YOU AND ROSAMOND ARE TO BE MY GUESTS. I'LL TEND TO THE VILLAIN DESMOND'S CASE!
CURSES! THE CZAR AND CLAUDE ARE PALS. I'M IN THE HANDS OF THE SOLDIERS AND I'M TO DIE A SLOW DEATH. I'LL FOIL THE CZAR, CLAUDE AND GET ROSAMOND YET!
THE CUR!
DESMOND, TAKE A BITE OF EACH, AND IF YOU LIVE I HAVE OTHER DEATHS FOR YOU VILLAIN!
CURSES! IT'S THE CZAR'S BIRTHDAY AND THE PEASANTS ARE SENDING HIM PIES AND CAKES. I'M FORCED TO TEST THEM AND IF THEY ARE POISONED I WILL DIE. CURSES!
CHERRY PIE! CLAUDE IS CRAZY ABOUT IT, TOO. I'LL QUIETLY THROW THE PITS ALL OVER THE KITCHEN I HAVE A PLAN I KNOW CLAUDE
THE WHOLE PALACE IS ASLEEP AND DESMOND IS IN CHAINS. I'M CRAZY ABOUT CHERRY PIE. I'LL SNEAK DOWN QUIETLY IN TO THE KITCHEN AND TAKE A FEW BITES THEY WILL NEVER MISS IT
OUCH! MY FEET OUCH CHERRY PITS. 'TIS DESMOND'S WORK!
HORRORS, I AWAKENED THE WHOLE PALACE
SO CLAUDE YOU ARE A SPY, EH? ARREST HIM AT ONCE, ALSO HIS ROSAMOND
SPYSKI HERSHFIELD.

I.—FRIENDS OF THE CZAR.

Claude and Rosamond are now high in the favor of the Czar, whose young son Claude so gallantly saved from falling over the bridge. Further, Desmond is as much in the Czar's bad graces as the lovers are the other way. It will go hard, with the villain, now that the Czar himself has directed that his miserable career be ended in the most painful manner.

II.—TESTING THE PIES.

The Czar's birthday, and all his loyal subjects send him cakes and pies and other presents as tokens of their fealty. Also some subjects that are not loyal may have sent in a few pies especially doctored for the disorganization of the Czar's internal economy. So Desmond is ordered to taste each pie. If he comes across a medicated one it will be curtains for him.

III.—CHERRY RIPE.

Investigating the various pies, dubious and not so dubious, Desmond comes across an appetizing pie with a filling of luscious cherries. Now Claude is passionately fond of cherry pie—indeed, one of his reasons for loving Rosamond so much is that she can bake a cherry pie that beats anything in New England. Desmond knows Claude's weakness and scatters cherry stones on the floor.

IV.—A MIDNIGHT LUNCH.

All the palace is asleep—all except Claude, that is. Our hero cannot take his mind off the delicious cherry pie he noticed down stairs. With such a plethora of pies, he figures that nobody would miss one, and so he resolves to sneak quietly down stairs and have a midnight lunch of cherry pie. It is our hero's one weakness, so we cannot condemn him too severely for his plan.

V.—OUCH! OUCH!

Ever step on a cherry stone in your bare feet? No? Well, never do. It will make you jump like a bucking broncho and holler like a crazy Indian. Claude, quietly sneaking into the imperial kitchen, has landed on a cherry stone, and when he comes down from his jump he lands on another. In his surprise he yells at the top of his voice, forgetting his position.

VI.—FALSELY ACCUSED.

Awakened by Claude's cries, the palace guard and the Czar himself rush to the kitchen. There our hero is discovered in the dead of night, and of course he is taken for a spy. Of what use to say that he was merely after cherry pie. Who would believe such a story? So now Claude and Rosamond are in a bad fix. To-morrow shows how they fare.

TRIED A CRAZY THOUGHT YET?

Have you learned to think "Crazy Thoughts?"

It is very simple and for many persons it has proved to be well worth while. The range of subjects which you can use is unlimited—politics, war, suffragettes, weather, dyspepsia, [illegible], your girl, and everything and anything that may enter your head.

All that is required is that you think of something that "may be all right," but that you are "glad that it is not customary." From the number of mail wagons that stop at the AMERICAN office every day, the Crazy Thought editor has decided that everybody in New England is thinking Crazy Thoughts.

The crazier they are the better is your chance to win some of the prizes. So put on your crazy cap tonight and get into a crazy mood and think a crazy thought. It is fine mental gymnastics anyway and there is $50 in it for the craziest thinker. For the next fifty, one dollar each and 150 other prizes.

Just write your thought on a post card and mail it to the Crazy Thought Editor, No. 5 Winthrop Square, Boston. Be sure and get your cards in by tonight in order to compete for this week's prizes. Wednesday night, don't forget.

Cost Morse $250,000 to Win His Freedom

ATLANTA, May 22.—It cost Charles W. Morse a fortune, probably $250,000, to secure his freedom from the Federal prison in Atlanta, where he spent two years for violating the National banking laws in New York. Announcement has just been made that the financier, who is about to return to America, possibly to resume operations in Wall street, contracted with the law firm of Anderson, Felder, Rountree & Wilson, to pay $100,000 for their legal services.

In addition, he employed Attorney Dougherty of Columbus, a personal friend of President Taft, to whom he also paid a big fee. Of the sum that he owes to the Atlanta firm a part has already been turned over to it, and the rest, it is said, will be paid soon.

Atlanta friends say that Morse is still a comparatively rich man, with at least $1,000,000 which he has disposed of under the name of his wife, his sister and others.

Auto News

BY J. C. KERRISON.

Despite the fact that the gasoline commercial automobile is now used for transporting nitro-glycerine, wharf owners are still found who insist that the gasoline car is a menace to safety and refuse to admit to their premises a vehicle fraught with so much potential risk. The new "nitro" wagon, it is naively explained, is fitted with a special metal sheathed body to prevent the juice running down among the moving parts should one of the cans spring aleak, otherwise no unusual provisions have been made. Of course, the modern farmer employs "his gasoline farmhand" for hauling hay, and baled cotton is hauled from press to the wharf on motor trucks, but the danger signal is hung out by the majority of wharf owners in Boston.

This is one of the handicaps that the motor truck men have to deal with and there are many big wool and other merchants who have a great deal of transportation from wharves to do who would use motor trucks if they were allowed to be driven on the wharves.

* * *

The policy recently adopted by the Lexington Company of carrying a good sized stock of cars in their Boston warehouse has proven a popular one, both with their agents and the public at large. If a man buys a Lexington car, he does not have to wait two or three weeks for factory delivery. He goes into the Boston office, where he is shown a half a dozen cars on the floor. Then he is driven to their warehouse, where he sees a dozen more in different colors. He makes his selection and takes his car home with him.

This method of doing business appeals especially to the New England sub-agencies who know that if they sell a car, they can get it and get it quick. Many prospective buyers have been holding off now, through six weeks of rainy weather. The first of June is only a few days off, and when the rush comes, everyone will want a car, and want it right off the floor. One house at least will be ready for them.

* * *

M. F. Chase, manager of the Empire Motor Car Agency of this city, New England distributors of the Stutz car, has just received the following telegram from the San Francisco representatives:

"Stutz with Earl Cooper driving broke Sacramento to Folsom record today. Time sixteen minutes fifty-nine seconds. Twenty miles country road with five railroad crossings and three bridges. Met team on bridge, which caused full stop. Best previous record twenty-one minutes, made by Stoddard-Dayton fifty. 'It's a bear.'"

This is merely another indication of the wonderful construction and great speed, power and endurance of the Stutz car.

DEATH OF PRINCE MAY BRING PEACE

BERLIN, May 22.—The death of Prince George William, the eldest son of the Duke of Cumberland, in an automobile accident, passing the claim of succession to the throne of Hanover to his younger brother, Prince Ernest Auguste, has revived the question of reconciliation between the Prussian and the Hanoverian houses and the abandonment of the latter's claim to the throne.

The Opportunity of the Democratic Party; Shall It Be Lost Through the Conduct of Men Like the Five Democratic Senators Who Voted for the Boston & Maine Lease to the New Haven?

The gods gave Cassandra of Troy the power of prophecy, but, for her fault, they cursed her by commanding that nobody should believe what she said. Therefore, when she warned the Trojans not to admit the Greek horse within the walls, nobody heeded her warning.

The conduct of those Democratic Senators who voted to allow the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad to lease the Boston & Maine, after the last three years' disastrous experience with the management of the Boston & Maine by the New Haven, is the kind of conduct which helps to make a Cassandra of the Democratic party.

How can we hope that the people will heed the warnings of the Democratic party against the aggressions and lawlessness of the great corporations and trusts and the high tariff, if the moment Democrats get into office a substantial number of them break the faith and aid the most lawless and aggressive of all the corporations in its boldest attack upon the public welfare.

For years men like Horgan, Powers, Hunt, Mack and Grainger have brought the curse of Cassandra down upon the Democratic party by their faithlessness to the Democratic creed.

Forever the faithful and intelligent in the party are warning the people against some evils and too often the people discover some alleged Democrat in public office promoting the very evil against which the party has set up its warning cry.

Is it any wonder, then, that a large number of intelligent citizens in the past have not taken the Democratic platforms and predictions seriously? Although the party had the power of prophecy and told the truth, it has been cursed by the conduct of men like these Democratic Senators, and too few have been willing to believe it.

HOW UNFORTUNATE AND UNTIMELY THIS APOSTACY IS AT THIS MOMENT!

Senator Crane, the master mind of the Republican party in this State, is retiring.

The Republican party in State and nation is torn asunder.

The faithlessness of the Taft administration to the policies on which it was put into office by the country is like a chip in a torrent sweeping it away wherever the people have a chance to express their opinion directly at the primaries.

The great middle classes have awakened at last to the evils of present conditions. Now at last they realize that they are being robbed worse even than the workingmen, for they are not only affected by the high cost of living, but their little investments are being taken away from them.

How many thousands of dollars have been cruelly wrested from hundreds of middle class families which have had, or still have, their little savings in the stock of the Boston & Maine, whose value has been cut almost in two since the New Haven took control of it!

With the people aroused and indignant and the Republican party in State and nation demoralized, the Democratic party stands the natural heir to the change which is inevitable.

But will the inheritance come to the party if it should have many more men like Powers, Grainger, Horgan, Hunt and Mack as its representatives in office?

Waiving all consideration of the injury which this vote might do the State, it is most unfortunate and untimely from a mere party standpoint, that these men should be faithless now.

The AMERICAN urges its Democratic readers to bear the five Democrats in mind. The AMERICAN WILL HELP THEM TO REMEMBER THIS APOSTACY.

Lorimer's Second Coat of Whitewash

According to three members of the special Senate Committee appointed to reinvestigate the Lorimer case, this second investigation was "broader and more far-reaching" than the first, and it conclusively establishes the fact that at least ten of the votes cast for Lorimer in the Illinois Legislature were corrupt; his election to the United States Senate was therefore invalid.

But on the other hand, five members of the committee—three Republicans and two Democrats—report that no new evidence worth mentioning has been discovered, that the case stands precisely where it stood at the end of the previous Senatorial inquiry and that, since the Senate on that occasion, "solemnly and deliberately" exonerated Lorimer, nothing now remains but to do the same once more.

In short the majority of the committee have concluded—by a party vote—that a second coat of whitewash is a mere decorative superfluity—that the first coat was enough. They hold that the Senate, after spending so much solemnity and deliberation over the Lorimer case last year, could not possibly have made a mistake about Lorimer's seat—that the only mistake made by the Senate was in repenting of its decision and appointing another committee to look into the matter.

What the Senate will do with these two reports—one of them obviously honest and the other obviously not—remains to be seen.

The Senate's predicament is exactly what it was last year.

The country has already decided about Lorimer. It is the Republican party in the Senate that is on trial.

Yum, with his successful pugilist, was greeted everywhere as one swell kid.

He soon visited the cafes where other managers and pugilists congregated. He listened to the stories of how they trimmed a sucker here and there; how they fixed the game and fooled the public. Things went along swimmingly now. Yum's motto was "As we journey through life let us live by the way." He never gave the future a tumble. HIS day was today, let tomorrow take care of itself.

"Ha, ha!" how Yum giggled over the boys in the little schoolhouse now. There they were, the poor boobs, reading about old kings, bum lakes and adding numbers while he was in the calcium ordering wine by the magnum.

His name was in all the sporting pages, his pictures in some, and he had the swellest sparkler along the gay white way.—By Tad.

A Wonderful World Coming Into View

The Planet Jupiter Is as Big as Thirteen Hundred Earths Rolled Into One

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

If you will sit up a little late one of these mid-May nights you will have an opportunity to see the giant planet Jupiter make his entry upon the star stage of the evening sky.

He comes slowly up in the east between 10 and 11 o'clock, and seems to pause and stare with a golden eye over the rim of the horizon. As he rises higher you might, perhaps, think that he was a bright lamp carried by some night-wandering aviator. He is now in the constellation Scorpio, and near him is the fiery red star Antares. But although that star is a sun and Jupiter only a planet, the latter seems many times the brighter. The reason is because Antares is about a million and a half times farther away from the earth than Jupiter. So, although Antares shines independently, with its own light, and is really a greater sun than ours, while Jupiter shines only by reflected sunlight, and is a mere speck in comparison, yet, owing to the belittling effect of immense distance, the sun Antares appears fainter than the planet Jupiter.

It is probable that all the millions of suns constituting the universe have their planets, but the only planets we CAN SEE are those belonging to our sun, and of these Jupiter is the chief. It would take 1,300 earths to make one Jupiter. Put a big jack marble, about an inch in diameter, beside an ordinary school globe, ten or twelve inches in diameter, and you will see how small the earth would look if placed beside Jupiter.

Some Interesting Comparisons

The surface of Jupiter is about 120 times as extensive as that of the earth. If we suppose it covered with continents and oceans of the same shape and relative size as those of the earth, we can make some interesting comparisons between distances on Jupiter and distances on the earth. For instance, the American continent, between Boston and San Francisco, is about 3,000 miles across,—on Jupiter it would be about 33,000 miles across. The Pacific Ocean, stretched to the scale of Jupiter, would be 120,000 miles broad, and the swiftest ship yet built, driven continually at top speed, would require six weeks to cross it.

If the city of New York occupied the same relative space on Jupiter that it does on the earth it would be ONE HUNDRED AND SEVENTY-FIVE MILES LONG, from the Battery to the Yonkers line, equal to the actual distance between New York and Baltimore. Everything would be stretched in similar proportions; the avenues would be a thousand feet wide; and office buildings several thousand feet high. The height of the Metropolitan tower would be nearly a mile and a half.

One naturally thinks of the inhabitants—would they be constructed on the same Brobdingnagian scale? If they were, an ordinary man on Jupiter would be about SIXTY FEET TALL. Some of the big policemen might measure seventy feet in their stockings.

But a man seventy feet tall would, on the earth, weigh at least 260,000 pounds, while on Jupiter, where the force of gravity is more than two and a half times as great as on the earth (2.65), his weight would be 689,000 pounds!

Inhabitants Two Feet Tall

This is evidently more than flesh and blood could bear, and, accordingly, it has generally been assumed that the inhabitants of immense worlds like Jupiter (if there be any) must be smaller instead of larger than those of the earth, for otherwise they could not even stand erect. If we suppose the proportion of size to be inverse to that of the force of attraction, or the gravity, then an average inhabitant of Jupiter ought to be but little more than two feet tall.

These considerations, however, do not affect the area of the geographical features of the planet, but, on the contrary, they make it possible to calculate for Jupiter an almost incredible population. If Jupiter had continents of the same relative size as ours, containing the same number of inhabitants per unit area, it could hold, without being any more crowded than the earth, a hundred and eighty thousand million inhabitants. But if the inhabitants were mere dwarfs the number might be increased to a thousand thousand millions without straining the productive energies of the planet to maintain them.

These calculations have been given merely in order to make the size of Jupiter as compared with the earth more strikingly apparent, and not because there is any reason to think that Jupiter actually has any continents or oceans, or any inhabitants resembling men and women. The fact is that Jupiter appears to be a globe which has not yet solidified. It is, as I have said, 1,300 times larger than the earth, but it is only 316 times heavier, which shows that its mean density is only about a quarter of that of the earth. As far as the telescope shows Jupiter is an enormous globe of clouds, without anything solid about it. There may be a solid nucleus, but if so it cannot be seen.

Peering Behind the Scenes

Jupiter is a planet that is cooling off and contracting, and getting ready to solidify, and to receive the gifts that are bestowed, in due time, upon all new-born worlds which are intended to support inhabitants. To watch it with a telescope, to see its vast clouds boil and gyrate and change their hues, and its four moons run rapidly around it, as in play, throwing their shadows on its broad surface, and darting into visible darkness that it projects into space behind it—moons whose motions will be studied with all the eagerness of a new-felt thirst for knowledge when Jupiter shall have become the abode of intellectual life—this is to peer behind the scenes of Creation, and to discover the true place of the earth in the evolution of worlds.

Lady Florence Dixie's Views on Sport

—AND—

The Tragedy of Killing Dumb Animals

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal-Examiner.

"'SPORT' is horrible. I say it advisedly. I speak with the matured knowledge of one who has seen and taken part in numberless forms of sport in many and varied parts of the world.

"I can handle gun and rifle as well and efficiently as most 'sporting folk,' and few women, and not many men, have had experience of a tithe of the shooting and hunting in which I have been engaged both at home and during travels and expeditions in far-away lands.

"It is not, therefore, as a novice that I take up my pen to record why I, whom some have called a 'female Nimrod,' regard with absolute loathing and detestation any sort or kind or form of sport which in any way is produced by the suffering of animals.

"It is a remnant of barbarism in man's nature that he should take pleasure in displaying his skill on living animals. Deer-stalking is no doubt a healthy and exhilarating exercise, requiring endurance, stamina, a clear sight and a steady hand. Yet the last act in a successful stalk is, if we come to think about it, disgusting and horrible.

"In close proximity to us we see a lordly animal—happy, peaceful and enjoying fully the gift of life. We draw a trigger, and if we do not miss we wound or kill. Happy, indeed, if it be the latter. More often than not it is the former, and then, if limbs are not broken, a fierce tracking ensues, resulting sometimes in the death of the victim, sometimes in its loss, and, as a consequence, many an hour of torture ere death closes its sufferings.

"Yet thousands are spent yearly on deer forests, and the paean of animal woe that goes up therefrom throughout the stalking season expands itself year after year unheard, unfelt, unthought of amidst the throng of men.

"What more aggravated form of torture is to be found than coursing with greyhounds, the awful terror of the hare depicting itself in the laid-back ears, convulsive doubles, and wild, starting eyes, which seem almost to burst from their sockets in the agony of tension which that piteous struggle for life entails?

"And what sadder sight is there to be found in the records of the hunted than that of a dead-beat fox, worn out, with lolling tongue, heaving sides, bedraggled brush, with the baying of the nearing pack growing every moment more distinct, struggling on in search of safety for his doomed life, dodging now here, now there, surrounded by a hostile field, the fiendish tally-ho sounding in his ears, the cracking of whips which warns him against any further attempt to escape? Then the hounds rush in. For one brief moment he turns at bay. Cui bono? The next all is worry, worry, worry, as the poor, weary, but gallant fox is torn limb from limb, disembowelled and reduced to a shapeless mass of bloody, bedraggled fur. A fitting death it is indeed, following as a sequel on the hunted torture which the poor creature has suffered from find to finish.

"I have ridden to hounds over many a hard-fought field, yet ever as I did so reproach knocked at my heart, and I have asked myself, 'Cannot we have sport without cruelty?'

"Assuredly we can. Well-laid drags, tracked by experts, would test the mettle both of hounds and riders to hounds, but then a terrified, palpitating, fleeing life would not be struggling ahead, and so the idea is not pleasing to those who find pleasure in blood. Much of this barbarous taste and callous indifference to the sufferings of animals is bred with our childhood and upbringing. Youth, especially of the male sex, is taught to regard shooting and hunting as manly accomplishments. Women, myself included, are in many instances brought up to indulge in sporting amusements, and it follows, as a natural sequence, that in the large majority of cases where this is so a CALLOUS INDIFFERENCE TO THE AGONY AND MISERY CAUSED TO THE VICTIMS IS IMPERCEPTIBLY ENGENDERED."—Lady Florence Dixie.

These strong, earnest words, written by a woman of title, will do more to arouse the women of America to a sense of their responsibility toward our dumb kin than a long course of lectures given by any reformer of our own land could do. America has aped Europe in its ideas of sport, and few, if any, American women of this generation are given to the cruel sport of the hunt, save those who have lived abroad or who have been educated along foreign lines.

In the early days of our New England foremothers women knew how to handle a gun, and knew how to kill wild animals for self-protection and for food.

But that necessity passed with the onward march of progress, and the woman who kills animals today kills in a wanton love of cruelty, even as Lady Dixie has said, "and with a callous indifference to the agony she causes."

No woman who can find enjoyment in such sport has a right to be a mother.

One unfortunate youth, who was a criminal almost from the cradle, killing insects and animals, and finally human beings, from mere love of seeing things die, was the victim of an ignorant mother, the wife of a butcher who watched her husband kill animals before the birth of her child.

The woman who is filled with keen delight in being first at the death of a fox or deer, the woman who can enjoy seeing a beast or a bird die and find pleasure in the reputation of "a good shot" when living creatures are the mark at which she aims, that woman is morally unfit to be a mother.

Lady Dixie's letter shows the change in public sentiment which is coming over the world in these matters.
